Attacked Buying Whisky

LIQUOR SEIZED

When Mrs. Eleanor Coleman, 29, of 5509 Walnut street, tried to buy a pint of whisky in a restaurant at 140 North Sheridan avenue, for her sick husband, she testified in Morals Court today, she was attacked by James Bird, 37, the proprietor. Bird, she told Judge A. D. Brandon, accused her of being a prohibition agent. Lieut. John Jones led a police raid on the cafe and confiscated liquor after Mrs. Coleman's complaint, he said. Bird was held for court on four charges.

All Kinds of Climate.
A Magnet Puzzle.
Wise Old Capitalism.
No German Worry.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

WE HAVE a variegated climate, dogs pulling sleds over Alaska's ice, ladies and their friends lying half-naked on the sands of Florida, California and the Gulf States.

And the thermometer does not tell everything about the weather. New York shivered and growled yesterday at 14 above zero, while Donald McMillan, Arctic explorer, sent word, through radio, that he is quite comfortable at Bowdoin, Labrador, with the temperature 35 below zero.

It depends on humidity, elevation, ozone and other things probably of which we know nothing.

IF YOU asked, "Can NOTHING be more powerful than SOMETHING?" you would get no serious answer.

But how do you explain this fact, announced by German science and proved by convincing experiment? A hollow magnet is more powerful than a solid magnet.

THE absence of magnetized metal inside the magnet increases its magnetic strength. A magnet containing four hollow lamellae has as much lifting power as one containing nine solid lamellae.

EVERYTHING is possible in chemistry and physics, now that atomic construction and the horrible power and speed of the tiny electrons have been added to human knowledge. But that hollow magnet news is a thing to puzzle science.

ONE advantage is possessed by wise "capitalism," and unknown to Bolshevism, revolution, organized labor and the general public. Capitalism is always grateful, never forgets a good turn, rewards friends generously.

Bolshevism exiles Trotsky—and others of Lenin's ablest assistants—to Siberia.

REVOLUTION in France guillotined Danton, its ablest man; guillotined Robespierre, justly called the "Incorruptible," and would have guillotined Mirabeau had he not died.

AS FOR the general public, it does not even know who its friends are half the time. It first idolized, then insulted Dewey because he gave a house to his wife. And it threw Lindbergh's father out of Congress because he was not sufficiently servile to financial interest. But big business lives up to its motto, "Never go back on your friends."

GERMANY imported last year goods worth a billion dollars more than goods exported, including $125,000,000 of products sent to the Allies under the Dawes plan, not paid for. In addition, Germany faces annual payments of $500,000,000 a year in gold under the same Dawes plan. German business worries.

BUT there is always comfort. Excess of imports over exports is not necessarily a calamity. France, under Louis XVI managed to get her exports above imports, and then the revolution broke.

AS TO the $500,000,000 a year Dawes gold plan, that will be changed, if only because such payment is physically impossible. A little boy bets "a million," but does not pay it. Germany can-

3 KILLED IN NICARAGUA BY GOB

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Three Nicaraguans were killed today in a fierce fight near Granada with an American sailor and a marine who had attempted to come to the rescue of a fourth Nicaraguan being hacked to death with machetes.

L. F. Newton, United States Navy, killed the three Nicaraguans after his companion, Harold L. Crowell, first sergeant, United States Marine Corps, had been attacked and severely cut on the hands with machetes by his assailants.

In their account of the fight, the men said that they were horseback riding near Granada when they suddenly came upon three men, attacking a fourth with machetes. They dismounted with the intent of disarming the attackers and the three Nicaraguans, who by this time had killed the fourth, turned on them.

Crowell whipped out his revolver and pulled the trigger, but the cartridge failed to explode. The men attacked him, cutting him on the fingers and hands. Meanwhile, Newton killed two of the men who were attempting to decapitate Crowell. Newton attempted to shoot the third man who was standing over Crowell who had fallen to the ground. When his third shot failed to explode, Newton seized a machete which had been carried by the fourth Nicaraguan and killed the third man.

Smith Girl in Paris

By Interoptional News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Police today received a cablegram from Leon Leoni, French detective, stating that he is satisfied a young woman registered at the Hotel Astor in Paris is Frances St. John Smith, wealthy missing Smith College student.

Leoni's cable stated:

"Satisfied it is Frances. She arrived here with a Miss Glick. Am watching. Cable instructions."

The missing student's parents stated that they did not know any Miss Glick, but they pointed out that Frances was in Paris last year and that she made many friends there. It was stated that a photograph of Frances, for whom a countrywide search has been made, would be cabled to Paris immediately.

Previous advices from Paris had stated that the girl thought to be Miss Smith turned out upon investigation to be a Miss Annie Smith of New York. However, the later message from the detective greatly heartened the girl's relatives.

DORAN ORDERS PROBE

IT IS TO ascertain the truth of just such charges as are made by Phillip Murray in the accompanying article that The Sun-Telegraph is bringing Fannie Hurst, noted woman writer, to Pittsburgh. Watch for her first article on mine strike conditions here.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Declaring that a reign of lawlessness exists in the coal mining camps of Western Pennsylvania, officials of the United Mine Workers of America today filed with the Federal Prohibition Bureau here a formal complaint urging that federal agents be sent to fields in the Pittsburgh district to conduct a comprehensive drive against "bootleggers and dope-peddlers."

Immediately on receipt of the protest letter signed by Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, Commissioner Doran got in touch with Prohibition Administrator J. D. Pennington at Pittsburgh and ordered an exhaustive investigation of the charges.

Doran also dispatched a number of special investigators to Pittsburgh. They will launch a complete survey of the situation, probably today. The investigation by the Washington agents will be independent of that to be conducted by Pennington, the authorities here said.

"Conditions in the Pittsburgh district are not as black as pictured by Murray, in my opinion," Doran said. "Pennington has been doing a good job at Pittsburgh, and every effort is being made to keep down the liquor and narcotic traffic."

Non-union mining camps of the Pittsburgh district are over-run with denizens of the underworld, while drunken brawls, fights and assaults by men and women have resulted in "nearly 100 murders" since the present strike situation developed in 1925, the miners' protest charged.

The complaint of the mine workers, reading like a chapter of rough frontier life in the early days of Alaska, was made public by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, today refused to comment on the complaint of Vice President Philip Murray, of the United Mine Workers of America, to Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran regarding the alleged operations of bootleggers, dope peddlers and underworld characters in the camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

"Commissioner Doran's statement will have to be sufficient. I have no comment to make," said the head of the local prohibition enforcement office.

JORDAN SUNG DOWN

Refusing to accept Attorney William A. Jordan as their teacher, 120 members of the Callander Bible Class of the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church at yesterday's service sang hymns and drowned out the voice of the teacher as he tried to speak.

Jordan was assigned as class teacher by V. R. Covell, superintendent of the Sabbath School, over the opposition of class members.

The members of the class also refused to listen to Mr. Covell when he attempted to quiet matters.

A week ago a majority of the class voted to reject Jordan and to install the Rev. Dr. Walter Hunter, a class member, as teacher. The class had previously elected A. C. Dunkle for teacher, but he was refused recommendation by Covell and the Rev. Dr. Sheridan W. Bell, pastor.

The dissension between church officials and the class members started over the ousting of Dr. T. M. Sankey, then class teacher. Dr. Sankey is said to have failed to co-operate with Dr. Bell, but members of the class say that he was ousted because he differed with alleged modernistic or liberalistic views of the pastor and Mr. Covell.

Town Hall Dinner Feb. 6

The Town Hall Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, of which George S. Davison is chairman, has determined that the time is opportune to submit to the voters of Allegheny county in the form of a bond issue, the question of providing funds to build a public auditorium in this community. With this in view, a Town Hall dinner will be held at the William Penn Hotel, Monday night, February 6, at which County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and C. C. McGovern will be the guests of honor.

The purpose of the dinner is to emphasize to the County Commissioners the advisability of putting

Anne Caldwell, 27, of the musical comedy stage and more recently victor to the extent of $50,000 in a suit against John W. Hubbard, Pittsburgh shovel manufacturer, is determined to show the public she has been misjudged. She is soon to open a fashion studio in New York, pointing particularly toward theatrical trade. FLAMES PUT 27 OUT

Four persons, one an aged woman who had to be carried to the street, were rescued and 27 others driven from their homes in night clothing in three early morning fires causing a total damage of $18,000. In all, seven families were routed.

One fire was at 5515 Howe street, one at 1008-1010 Goehring street, North Side, and the third in Carnegie.

Trapped by flames on the second floor, Mrs. Myrtle Fahel, her daughter, Jessie, 18, and son, Walter, 16, were helped to the rear roof of their home at 5515 Howe street and thence by a ladder to the street. J. C. Fahel, the father and husband, escaped by crawling over a front roof. Jerry and Paul Dorn, of 5517 Howe street, used a ladder to rescue the wife and children. The Dorn boys and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dorn, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fell, and their son, William, of 5513 Howe street, were forced out by smoke.

At the Goehring street fire, Mrs. Caroline Weschler, 74, was carried from her home on the third floor of 1010 Goehring street when flames, spreading from an adjoining dwelling, threatened to destroy the residence. Louis Martin, his wife, Mildred, and their two children, Charlotte, 5, and Louis, Jr., 10 months, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dorsch and their two children, Fred, Jr., 8, and William, 2, also were forced from their apartments on the first and second floors.

The blaze started in the home of Harry Holmes, a retired fireman, at 1008 Goehring street. Holmes, 55, his wife, Mathilda, and their four children, Thelma, 20; Loretta, 17, Harry, 15, and Robert, 12, and an uncle, David Holmes, were forced to the street. They were aroused by a milkman who discovered the fire. The cause of the blaze is unknown.

Escaping in night clothing from their burning home last night, five members of the family of Samuel H. Miller, of 613 West Main street, Carnegie, were cared for by neighbors. Several thousand dollars damage was done by the flames, which are believed to have been caused by an overheated furnace.

COUNTY BOARD BEGINS BUDGET SESSION TODAY

The Board of County Commissioners will go into budget session today, faced with the necessity of cutting more than a half million dollars from appropriation requests if they are to keep the tax rate the same as last year. Requests call for an increase in appropriations of $617,441.78 in addition to whatever funds may be needed for maintaining the county parks.

ACCLAIM FANNIE HURST'S COMING

All over Pittsburgh, civic, church and welfare workers received with commendation yesterday news that Fannie Hurst will come to Pittsburgh tomorrow to write her opinion of the coal strike.

With few exceptions, the more than 30 persons interviewed expressed confidence that the unbiased investigation to be made by Miss Hurst will enable her to lay before readers of The Sun-Telegraph all the issues involved in the coal strike in her interesting style, which makes her one of the most highly-paid writers in America.

Some expressions from Pittsburghers concerning Miss Hurst's coming visit were:

DANIEL WINTERS, councilman—Any stories written after the real facts have been obtained will be very helpful in acquainting the public with the conditions in the mining communities here. Many doubt the stories as the miners tell them and others doubt the stories as the operators present them, so if Miss Hurst will write an unbiased report, it probably will do much good.

MISS ROSE PORTER, secretary of the board of directors of the Mothers' Assistance Fund of Allegheny County—I guess it depends a whole lot upon who writes such stories. Miss Hurst is better fitted to do this than any other writer.

T. P. GAYLORD, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce—I doubt whether the public really knows what is going on in the mine towns here, and I have my doubts whether an unbiased story will do much good.

MISS ELEANOR HANSON, director of the Associated Charities of Pittsburgh—It will help to put the need of the suffering miners before the public. There is no question but that it will more vividly describe the poverty than has yet been done.

MRS. ENOCH RAUH, director of the Department of Public Welfare—Fannie Hurst is one of my dearest friends. In her writings she has always shown a clear mind and unprejudiced viewpoint. She has looked upon life as a whole. For these reasons I think she will give readers of your paper an unprejudiced, comprehensive and faithful exposition of facts.

OLIVER K. EATON, attorney, counsel for the United Mine Workers of America—It will be a great thing for the people to know just what is going on and they will be better able to see

BRADDOCK MAN KILLS WIFE AND HIMSELF

REFUSED MONEY; SHOOTS

The murder of Mrs. William Budol, 37, of 818 Sixth street, Braddock, police say by her husband who ended his own life at the same time, it was revealed yesterday forever halted a pathetic struggle on the part of Mrs. Budol to raise and support four children in the face of almost superhuman odds.

Mrs. Budol was shot down Saturday in the kitchen of her home. Her husband who was found lying by her side with a bullet in his brain, is said to have been drink-crazed at the time. Both died in the Braddock General Hospital a few hours later.

The orphaned children, Adelade, 12; Stanley, 11; Olga, 5, and William, 8, who were in bed on the second floor when the tragedy occurred, told the details today. About midnight, they said, their father returned home and quarreled with their mother. He complained because she would not supply him with money to buy whisky. The mother then put the children to bed, and soon after they were awakened by the shots.

According to Peter Edukas, a brother-in-law of Budol, the latter was a boilermaker, but for the past four years refused to work. When under the influence of liquor, he often returned to his home to beat his wife. Last Christmas neighbors interfered and Budol was sent to the workhouse.

Upon Mrs. Budol's shoulder's, neighbors say, fell the burden of raising her family. She washed clothes three days each week, and with the money earned from that, together with the amount earned by her oldest boy, who sells papers, they managed to live.

Edukas said yesterday that he would take care of the children.

Cut Throat and Jugular Vein, Child 5 Recovering

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Although physicians cut her throat and severed her jugular vein, ordinarily more than enough to cause death, Madeline Flores, 5, is recovering at Wesley Memorial Hospital.

Six surgeons stood by as the child's throat was pierced and the jugular vein cut and tied. Then a breathing tube was inserted and the flow of poison was diverted.

Madeline's recovery is now assured—thanks to a remarkable surgical operation.

St. John Smith, missing Smith College student, to return to her parents or to communicate personally with him so that he can assure her that everything is all right. The girl disappeared on January 13.

While the Governor was making his statement, a thousand circulars bearing the full face and profile photographs of the missing student were delivered at police headquarters to be distributed. The circulars, which contain a description of the girl, offer a $10,000 reward for her return alive and $1,000 for information of her whereabouts.

The Governor is not related to the missing student.

ACCUSED OF "GRAFT"

MRS. FLORENCE E. S. KNAPP

Charges of forgery, grand larceny, false audits and certifications have been launched against Mrs. Knapp, of Syracuse, former secretary of state of New York, in connection with her administration of the $1,200,000 census fund of 1925. The March term of the Albany county grand jury will act on the charges.

Lindy Near Breakdown From Continuous Fetes

CRISTOBAL, CANAL ZONE, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The eagerness of Latin-America to do honor to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has brought him to a point where he is very nervous, Col. Arthur Fisher, commandant of France Field, believes.

The Lone Eagle "may crack under the strain," Fisher said.

Although the Spirit of St. Louis is ready to carry Lindy on to South America, it was announced that he would take several days' more rest before setting out for Cartagena and Barranquilla, Colombia.

The good will flier is understood to have expressed a wish that someone double for him in the social engagements his flight calls for. He is willing to do the flying and, according to Col. Fisher, is only nervous when on the ground and not when in the air.

CITY HEAD WARNS OF PERIL

Motorists' lives are menaced by rocks overhanging important Pittsburgh highways, Council was warned today in a communication from Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang.

The situation is especially dangerous, the Director said, on Bigelow boulevard between Kirkpatrick street and the Seventeenth Street Incline, and on East Ohio street.

At these and other places there are masses of rock "which may break loose at any time with a very decided probability of fatal accidents and property damages," the Director said. He asked an immediate appropriation of $10,000 to meet the situation and indicated that more funds may be needed in the future.

In addition, the Director sent Council a schedule of proposed improvements to cost $2,774,400. These proposals are to be discussed by Council, the Director, his engineers and the Mayor, and, if finally approved, will be included in a councilmanic bond issue.

This is the schedule submitted by the Director: $720,000 for raising streets in the North Side flood district, $300,000 for sewers, $502,000 for extension and improvement of the water supply system, $50,000 for river front improvement, $250,000 for bridge repairs, $92,000 for retaining walls, $203,000 for playgrounds, including four additional swimming pools; $120,000 for park improvements, and $22,000 for a garage for the bureau of highways and sewers.

an item in the county bond issue program which is to be submitted at the April primary election, for sufficient funds to permit of the building of a large public auditorium in the Pittsburgh metropolitan area. It is estimated that such a structure will cost $6,000,000. The feature of the dinner will be an illustrated address by William Ganson Rose of Cleveland. Mr. Rose will show views of the Cleveland and other auditoriums throughout the country and will present to the dinner the fact that nearly every community of any consequence in the United States has such a public building except the one centering around Pittsburgh. Lincoln G. Dickey, manager of the Cleveland Auditorium since it was opened several years ago, also will speak. Mr. Davison will act as toastmaster, and there will be several other prominent speakers.

In addition to the County Commissioners, Mayor Charles H. Kline and all of the members of City Council and other county and city officials will be present. There will also be invited the Mayors of McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, the burgesses of the various boroughs throughout the county, and the township commissioners. It will be one of the biggest and most impressive affairs of its kind ever held in the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Area.

Chairman Davison yesterday made public a list of 50 organizations which have already indorsed the Town Hall idea for the Pittsburgh district.

Take Away Permit

The Iron City Brewery of the Pittsburgh Brewing Company has lost its permit to make near beer, John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for this district, revoking the license on Saturday following hearings on the case after a raid on the plant November 7.

R. E. Joyce, assistant administrator for the prohibition department, hearer in the revocation proceedings, found evidence of attempted transportation and diversion of beer and liquor. It was ascertained, on examination, that whisky, champagne, wine and beer, said to be the personal "pre-war" property of E. J. Vilsack, an officer of the company, and found in his automobile, was recently made moonshine.

South Side Girl Safe

Virginia C. Gray, 14, South High School freshman, who disappeared Wednesday from her home, 1504 Sarah street, is believed by her family to be in the city and safe from harm, James H. Gray, father of the girl, said today that he had a clue to the girl's whereabouts and was certain that she had not been kidnaped.

"Virginia has been scanning the newspaper want ad columns for the last two weeks in search for a position," said a member of her family, "and we believe that she had found a job and will let us know as soon as she can tell us she is a permanent wage-earner. She preferred independence to attending school."

A report reached firemen at No. 47 Engine Company last night that four men were carrying a girl along Reedsdale street toward the Allegheny River and it was reported that a description of the girl answered that of Miss Gray. Inspector Charles Faulkner this morning said he had no report of the incident.

Where?

Members of the Gray family said that they did not believe the report and declared that felt no alarm for Virginia.

not pay gold that she cannot possibly get.

EXPORTS or no exports, Germany leads European nations in real after-the-war recovery. She wiped out her internal debt, and sold to gullible foreigners, willing to profit by her misfortunes, billions of dollars in paper marks on which not one cent was ever paid.

Even at $800,000,000 a year it would take a long time for other countries to get back what they threw away in paper marks.

BRITISH statesmen have made up their minds to disfranchise 250,000 persons by taking votes away from paupers, all those receiving a "public dole."

There could be no greater mistake. Not the self-satisfied, prosperous, intelligent vote is most useful, but the vote of the unfortunate, unsuccessful man. He knows there is something wrong when 250,000 willing to work have no work to do, and he votes to make the government realize it. That's what government needs. Take the vote from the unfortunate and they make it unpleasant for you.

Nothing like a safety valve, especially when in danger of an explosion.

Thurston Visits Miners

U. P. STUDENTS SHUN SLIPKNOT MARRIAGE

MAGICIANS BRING CHEER—AND AID

Forgetting their troubles for a while yesterday afternoon, hundreds of miners and their suffering families welcomed Howard Thurston, the magician, his wife and daughter, who visited union barracks at Castle Shannon, Mollenauer and Curry. Wan faces, upturned in gratitude for the magician's gifts of dolls and blankets, told a pitiful story of hardship and suffering.

NO SLEIGHT-OF-HAND

Emma McDine, 9, appealed to Thurston on the edge of the crowd for a blanket for her sick mother. She got the blanket and a doll.

DAUGHTER ASSISTS HIM

Little girls to whom playthings come rather high these days thrilled beyond expression when the magician's wife and daughter started handing out baby dolls.

They lined up in orderly fashion at the request of the magic-maker and each one got a doll. They were not quite sure how Thurston was making so many appear in one place.

ENTERTAINS

Out of his bag of surprises, the great magician brought forth a few tricks to amuse as well as gifts to please. Peals of laughter went up when Thurston found a little white rabbit hiding under this chap's coat.

LOG TELLS OF FLIER'S FREEZING

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—A diary telling of tail spins and a parachute jump in a blizzard, has revealed how Fred Hoyt, Kansas aviator, died of exposure in the snowbound mountain country of southern Idaho.

The diary, also containing a letter to his bride of a month, told how Hoyt was forced down in a canyon January 14, and of his unsuccessful effort to escape freezing to death. His body was found Saturday by a rancher six miles from the spot where the ship crashed, and between two piles of brush gathered for a fire Hoyt was unable to start.

The diary was written on a flight log book, parts of which had been scattered along Hoyt's trail, apparently to mark the way back to the plane.

The first entry, written at 6:30 p. m., January 14, told of encountering fog shortly after leaving Salt Lake City for Boise, Idaho. Hoyt climbed to an altitude of 15,200 feet to avoid the fog, but ice formed on the ship.

"Wires began taking on ice and speed indicator stopped," Hoyt wrote. "Tried turn southeast but couldn't hold course. Ship sinking. Finally lost control and went into three spins at 8,000 feet. Tried to let ship adjust itself, but soon in fourth spin and decided to get out. Tried to get on wing but nosed down, throwing me

FRED HOYT

The frozen body of Fred Hoyt, Wichita, Kan., aviator, was found Saturday in the Black Pine Mountains, near Boise, Idaho, and but a few miles from where his crashed plane was found Friday. Scribbled notes revealed that Hoyt made a safe parachute landing but froze to death striving to get through the mountain snows. He was delivering the plane for a Wichita company to a purchaser in Boise.

MARRIAGE VIEWS VOTED

By International News Service.

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 23.—If the country is to depend upon companionate marriage to fill the divorce courts, little encouragement will be received from the seniors at Westminster College, a questionnaire announced in "The Holcad" today shows.

Of the 69 members of the senior class, only five were in favor of this form of marriage. Other questions of national or campus importance asked the fourth-year students revealed that the United Presbyterian seniors believe in prohibition as we have it now; believe Hoover should be the next President; and are unanimous in the opinion that Remus is guilty.

Thirteen senior men and women have been engaged to be married at one time or another, and 11 are still "promised." Ten members of the class plan to take graduate work next year; four will enter the ministry; while 27 will teach school, the survey disclosed.

Orvil Metz, of Pittsburgh, was voted the most versatile senior man, while Miss Betty Glover, of New Castle, was chosen the most accomplished girl. Howard Kelly, of New Castle, chairman of the upper class committee and varsity football star, was voted most likely to succeed.

The honor of being the most beautiful brunette at Westminster goes to Miss Ruth Brown, of Etna, and Miss Adele Rose, of Connoquenessing, was judged the most beautiful blonde. Jack Lewis, of New Wilmington, a freshman, was voted the best looking of the male brunettes, while James Purvis, of Butler, was chosen the handsomest blonde.

Will's Pity for Florida Turns To Envy

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 23.—I never like to pick on anybody when they are down. That's why I have layed off the Democrats, and for over two years I have not told a joke against Florida. I knew the people and I felt sincerely sorry for them. But I have just seen the state and noticed the conditions down here now, and my sympathy is getting back to the old envy again. With this climate and this close to six million people, Florida needs the sympathy of no one, and the jokes of no one can hurt it. Game people these Floridians. But you can afford to be game when you know you've got the goods. This mayor here sold Coolidge a lot while showing him the city Wednesday.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PITT DENTISTS GIVE 120,000 TREATMENTS

Approximately 120,000 operations were performed last year in the dental infirmary and extra-mural dental clinics of the University of Pittsburgh, according to a report made by Dean H. E. Friesell, of the Pitt school of dentistry, said to be the largest dental school in the world, in "The Record," official publication of the university. For the work done in the infirmary, the university charges patients only a fee sufficient to cover the cost of the operations to the school. Work done in the 42 extra-mural clinics of the university is without charge.

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 23.—Despondent because of three years' separation from his wife and child in Italy, Vincent Iervasi, 47, of Emlenton, hanged himself from a transom, while his roommate, Henry Fontana, went to Pittsburgh to meet his wife, who had arrived from Italy. The dead man had sent more than $5,000 to his wife and child.

His mind crazed with moonshine whisky, police said, William Budol, 41, shot down his wife, Anna, 37, and turned the gun on himself, firing a bullet into his brain, in their home, 819 Sixth street, Braddock.

SOUGHT TO CLEAR HOME

BOY, 14, HELD IN SISTER'S DEATH

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—Chester Fallon, 14, today was held in Paxtang Detention Home, awaiting an investigation of his fatal shooting of his sister, Anna May, 16, during a pillow fight at the family home here.

According to the terror-stricken boy, he and his sister were pummeling each other with pillows when he went to his father's room, procured his revolver, and aimed it at her "to frighten her."

The weapon was discharged, the shot piercing the girl's lung. Death was almost instantaneous.

LOCAL CARS GET SAFETY BOOST

Word was received in Pittsburgh from New York this morning that the Pittsburgh Railways Company had been accorded another honor in accident prevention and health promotion work, being awarded honorable mention and a certificate by the American Museum of Safety and the American Electric Railway Association for the year ending December 31, 1926. The Anthony N. Brady gold medal, the top honor, went to the Louisville Railway Company.

Simultaneous with the announcement of the awards it was stated that the electric railway industry during the 12-month period covered by the contest had reduced its fatal accidents approximately 15 per cent. Only one out of every 150,000,000 passengers carried during this period was fatally injured.

ASK U. S. TO OPEN WAR ON VICE AT MINE CAMPS

SAY MURDER, VIOLENCE RAMPANT

Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers Journal.

Particular attention of the Federal prohibition bureau was directed to alleged conditions in the camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, one of the largest of the producers. At the same time it was charged that similar conditions prevail in camps throughout the Pittsburgh district.

TEXT OF PROTEST

Following is the protest in full as filed with the bureau:

"Your attention is hereby directed to the flagrant and continuous violations of the Federal prohibition laws in coal mining camps of Western Pennsylvania, where bootleggers thrive and flourish through the sale and delivery of intoxicating liquors in open violation of said laws.

"This is a matter that properly comes under the jurisdiction of the bureau of prohibition, and in presenting this communication to you the United Mine Workers of America intend that it shall constitute a formal petition for an investigation by the bureau of the conditions herein set out, and for such action by said bureau of prohibition as shall put an end to them. While the conditions to which we direct your attention are common in the mining camps of Western Pennsylvania, known as the Pittsburgh district, we call your special attention to the notorious violations of the Federal prohibition law in the camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

"It is notorious as public knowledge in the Pittsburgh district that this condition exists in the camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and that it has continued to exist for many months past, apparently without interference by officers of the law. There is no secret about it in these communities, and the full facts can easily be ascertained by the Bureau of Prohibition. Drunken brawls in these camps are of common occurrence. Fights and assaults by drunken men and women no longer attract more than passing attention. Men bootleggers and women bootleggers supply liquor in these camps. Peddlers of dope circulate among the employes.

DEATH STALKS CAMPS

"Since this situation developed," the complaint added, "there have been nearly 100 murders in the coal mining camps of the Pittsburgh district, many of which can easily be traced to bootleg liquor as the cause.

"All of the facts stated herein are subject to proof, if the bureau will but take proper steps in the premises. The outrageous and immoral conditions existing in these coal mining camps as a result of the brazen and continuous violations of the Federal prohibition law constitute a disgrace to the communities, a humiliation to the good citizenship of those places and a standing menace to the peace, order, safety and morals of the people.

"It would be impossible for the Pittsburgh Coal Company to be ignorant of these wholesale law violations in its mining camps. That company maintains a large force of its own private police upon its various coal mining properties, but these private police have paid no attention to bootleggers and dope peddlers and addicts. Up to and until August, 1925, the Pittsburgh Coal Company employed competent, skilled miners in and around its mines in the Pittsburgh district. Approximately 19,000 men were thus employed by the company, all of them being members of the United Mine Workers of America, a trade union. They were law-abiding citizens and the communities in which they lived and worked were orderly and peaceful. Practically all of these men and their families had lived in the community for many years, and in thousands of cases a family had occupied the same house as its home for several generations. Moral, social and industrial peace prevailed.

"But, in August, 1925, the Pittsburgh Coal Company openly and premeditatedly repudiated its solemn and valid wage contract with the United Mine Workers of America and arbitrarily posted in lieu thereof a demand that its employes accept a wage reduction of approximately 33 1-3 per cent. The employes refused to accept the reduction. They took the position that the company had no right to scrap in August, 1925, a binding contract that did not expire until March 31, 1927.

IMPORT STRIKEBREAKERS

"Thereupon, the Pittsburgh Coal Company inaugurated a policy of importing what are commonly known as 'strikebreakers' to take the places of the union miners who refused to work at the reduced wage rates. The company established employment agencies in several of the large cities, including Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and elsewhere, and these agencies recruited thousands of these strikebreakers among denizens of the slums of those cities, many of them being men with criminal records and without regard or respect for law. In addition the Pittsburgh Coal Company imported many thousands of poor Negroes from the cotton fields of Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and South Carolina and from other Southern states and dumped them into the peaceful mining communities of the Pittsburgh district to work in the mines of that company.

"Most of the men of the thug type who were imported from the large cities, as well as practically all of the deluded Negroes who were brought from the southern states were green men, wholly without any experience as coal miners, and to this class of workers a wage rate or the amount of a day's pay means little or nothing. Large numbers of these men were deceived by those who hired them in that they were not aware when they accepted employment that they were to work in a coal mine. Therefore, when they arrived at the mine and learned what was expected of them, many thousands refused to remain or go to work. The Pittsburgh Coal Company found it was experiencing great difficulty in building up even an incompetent working force, and it was then that bootleggers of illegal liquors, dope peddlers and prostitutes began making their appearance in the mining camps as an inducement to the men to remain and work in the mines.

OTHERS FOLLOW SUIT

"Various other coal companies in the Pittsburgh district adopted the same policy of importation of strikebreakers on and since April 1, 1927, and some of the mining camps of these companies are infested with like conditions. But the Pittsburgh Coal Company is the largest in that field and was the first to inaugurate the policy described above. The others merely followed the lead of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, either in encouraging, promoting or permitting a reign of bootleg lawlessness to develop in the camps and among their imported employes.

"Wherefore, in the interest of law and order and public decency, we petition the Bureau of Prohibition to take proper action in the premises."

Do You Know What a Woman of 30 Should Weigh?

It all depends on her height, of course.

If she is 5 feet 7 inches in height she should weigh, according to the best authorities, 142 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 5 inches her normal weight is 134 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 3 inches she should weight 127 pounds.

It's dangerous to be always striving to grow thin—the Adirondack Mountains and health resorts everywhere are filled with health shattered women who will tell you that it doesn't pay to be too thin.

That is why so many thousands of underweight men and women are putting their faith in McCoy's Tablets.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking four dozen boxes of McCoy's Tablets or two one-dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least five pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

ACTOR FOLK PLAN VISIT TO MINERS

Good cheer will be brought to the families of destitute miners in the Pittsburgh district this week when stage people, who will take part in the Sheridan Square Theater benefit Thursday night, will visit the women and children in their homes. The call at the homes will be made primarily to acquaint actors and actresses with first-hand information of the conditions, but at the same time arrangements will be made to take a little sunshine along, as stage folk always do.

Some of the players insisted on the tour of the mines, declaring that they will show more spirit in their acts at the benefit if they know the need for the money which comes to the boxoffice. In all parts of the country theatrical folk have heard of the suffering of the little children of the Pittsburgh miners and in some of the visits the entertainers will put on a little show for the youngsters in the homes.

Managers of Pittsburgh theaters are directing personally the arrangements for the Sheridan Square benefit. The show, comprising a score of acts, will start at 11:30 p. m., following the regular performance and will run until long in the morning hours. It will give East Enders one of their first midnight shows.

POLICE CAPTURE 3 NEGROES, GET LOOT

Loot valued at several hundred dollars has been recovered by Frankstown avenue police, they say, through the arrest early today of three Negroes who are said to have admitted to a score of house robberies in the East Liberty district as well as a number of holdups. The prisoners are Eugene Poindexter, 22, of 5636 Penn avenue; Henry Coffey, 21, of 7544 Hermitage street and Robert Frazier, 21, of Blackadore avenue.

Poindexter was arrested at Penn and Euclid avenues by Detectives Frank Scott and M. J. O'Connor, who charged him with being a suspicious person. After much questioning, Poindexter admitted, police say, to a number of thefts and implicated the two others. A trunk filled with loot was found in Poindexter's room, according to police.

DRIVER ORDERS MAN'S ARREST

Recognizing a Negro who had held him up and robbed him a short time before, police say, Stanley Beck, a taxicab driver, of 2041 Rubin street, caused the alleged robber's arrest last night in Logan street. At the Center Avenue station the Negro said he was Earl Bird, 27, and gave a fictitious address.

Beck said Bird had robbed him of $5.40 at the point of a gun in Morgan street after hiring the cab in East Liberty. At the time of his arrest Bird was riding in another cab near Logan street, but he jumped to the street and ran when he recognized Beck following him, police say. Police believed he is the man who also robbed Martin Walsh, of 223 Darsie street, another cab driver, of $9 in Mohler street, near Frankstown avenue.

AUTO UPSETS, 3 BOYS HURT

Three boys were injured, one seriously, when an automobile in which they were riding upset on the Boquet road near West New Kensington. George Esko, 19, of Creighton, driver of the car, was arrested by police at Creighton.

The injured are Patrick McCleary, 17; Julian Mission, 17, and Joseph Elmerisek, all of Tarentum. McCleary suffered internal injuries; Mission suffered a fractured leg and Elmerisek is believed to be suffering concussion of the brain. They are in the Allegheny Valley Hospital at Tarentum.

The next entry, at 8:30 a. m., Jan. 18, told of keeping a fire throughout the night and of awakening from a brief slumber to find the snowfall continuing. At 2:10 p. m. on that day, he made the final entry. It said:

"Still came out for short time. I tried to estimate south from sun and decided this down ridge. Will stay here and keep warm tonight, then tomorrow will remove living suit and endeavor to go south."

Rawlins said that after gathering fresh fuel for a fire, Hoyt apparently sat down to rest and fell asleep, never to awaken.

A note on the first page of the log book, said, "Letter for my wife will be found on page 25."

Another party today was seeking to salvage the plane under the direction of officials of the Wichita, Kan., company employing Hoyt.

SECOND CRASHES IN STORM

DUNSMUIR, Cal., Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Hovering between life and death, Art Starbuck, air mail pilot, was in a hospital here today following an airplane crash at Shasta Springs in a scheduled flight between Medford, Ore., and San Francisco.

Trapped in the throes of a violent snowstorm, Starbuck's plane swooped down from a dizzy altitude near the lofty Mt. Shasta peak, struck a telephone pole, snapping it off at the base, and crashed to earth on railroad tracks of the Southern Pacific system.

A group of railroad section hands, witnessing the accident, rushed to the pilot's aid. Hacking their way through the twisted mass of wreckage with axes, they succeeded in extricating the flier from the crumpled cockpit.

But at the Mellenauer camp a sinister note intruded into the gayety. Two wistful urchins stood afar, wanting to enjoy the fun, wanting "lucky pieces," but fearful. There was ground for their fear. Someone in the crowd spied "Shoes," came from a few timid men, and word quickly spread. Voices belonging to women standing around. The barrel cry "Scads" in the icy mud. Masked Thug Gets $18 Loot

A Negro robber wearing a white mask decorated with black stars early today held up the hot dog shop of Joseph Sandpedro at 99 Logan street, according to a report made to police by Sandpedro. The Negro, armed with a revolver, obtained $18 from the owner and then fled, the report states.

ROB BLAWNOX BUTCHER

Two men armed with revolvers early yesterday robbed William Midnak, 40, a butcher, of Freeport road, Blawnox, of $176 in his home, forcing him to lie quiet on the kitchen floor while they escaped. Midnak was asleep in a chair in the kitchen when the men appeared, having gained entrance through a cellar window. County Detectives Harry Barker and David Caughey are working on the case.

ACCLAIM FANNIE HURST

the necessity for the struggle in which the miners are engaged. An unbiased report on the conditions will be greatly appreciated by the public.

J. H. FLAHERTY, former secretary and general manager of the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor—Anything that will bring the real facts to light are always of great assistance. If the public knows the truth they are always willing to be of assistance, when assistance is necessary. I have worked with charitable organizations in all parts of the country and was engaged in the work in Pittsburgh 17 years. In that time I have found the public very generous and I believe the Pittsburgh public is more generous than the residents of other cities.

JAMES F. MALONE, president of City Council—Miss Hurst is a very capable woman and should be able to give a very comprehensive report on the actual conditions in the mining industry here. Stories about the strike written by an uninterested party should be very helpful.

A. D. BRANDON, magistrate of Morals Court—I feel that without taking sides, too much publicity cannot be given to the mining strike here. The searchlight of publicity would enable the public to get a real view of the matter. Fannie Hurst can do a lot of good by reporting the conditions as she sees them.

MRS. CLARENCE RENSHAW—I met Miss Hurst at the national Democratic convention in San Francisco in 1920 and, of course, I was much interested in her, as everybody else was. I am delighted to learn that she is coming here, and I feel that her study of conditions among the miners' families will be fair, helpful and enlightening.

HELEN GLENN TYSON, member of Central Relief Committee—In studying this situation I hope Miss Hurst will get beneath the surface, just as she has portrayed human nature in her writings. All sorts of wild rumors which are afloat only serve to confuse the people as to the real conditions. I think it is splendid that she is coming here.

THE REV. JOHN R. EWERS, pastor of East End Christian Church—I doubt very much whether good will come of her investigation. It is likely to be superficial and she is apt to paint a lop-sided picture.

DR. THOMAS S. BAKER, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology—I'm not sure that Miss Hurst is qualified to report on the economic basis of the problems, but I'm satisfied that what she has to say will be of interest.

A. W. ROBERTSON, president of Philadelphia Company—An unbiased report should be of great value and I think that's what we need more than anything else.

ALLAN DAVIS, attorney and author—A great community like Pittsburgh should have nothing to conceal. If a large element of the population is suffering and unhappy, it will be to the ultimate benefit of Pittsburgh that the world should know it. Causes must be known before correctives are to be applied. Miss Hurst is a woman of fine skill and great humanity. I hope that she will not present a one-sided picture, or write in a muckraking spirit, but will tell the whole truth with malice toward none, with charity to all.

FATHER MARTIN HEBIR, Duquesne University—I think the public would be very appreciative if Miss Hurst gives us a truthful report of the problems as they are today.

DR. PERCY G. KAMMERER, pastor of Trinity Episcopal Church—An unbiased report of a writer of such great ability as Miss Hurst should be illuminating. I have a great admiration for her as an author.

THE REV. DR. W. I. WISHART, president of Pittsburgh Council of Churches—I think an impartial report from a writer of Miss Hurst's standing on the humanitarian and the economic issues would be of great value. I hope it will be a detailed, careful report and, of course, if it isn't, its value will be greatly reduced.

DR. RALPH E. CROMY, pastor of Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, chairman Clergymen's Fund for Miners' Relief—We need all the light we can get on this great subject. Undoubtedly an unbiased opinion by a writer of Miss Hurst's ability and experience will help the situation.

MRS. C. E. COSLOWSKY, president Congress of Women's Clubs—The Sun-Telegraph is certainly to be commended for bringing Miss Hurst to Pittsburgh to study the conditions of the strike and write an unbiased opinion. Nothing is more badly needed than an unbiased presentation of the facts, and there is no one more capable of making this presentation than Miss Hurst.

DR. CARL WALLACE PETTY, pastor, First Baptist Church—Miss Hurst is always interesting. She is a literary artist. Whether she is discussing facts or creating fiction in the present coal situation, her particular care will be to distinguish between these two things. What she thinks about what she sees will be interesting but unimportant. What she discovers may be very significant.

PROF. COLSTON E. WARNE, University of Pittsburgh, author of noted essay on "Present Conditions in the Coal Industry"—I believe that a person with technical information on the fundamental issues involved would be able to accomplish more than merely a writer. Whether Miss Hurst's experience in sociological problems will probe of value in the coal situation is, of course, problematical. However, The Sun-Telegraph is contributing to the situation by bringing forcibly to the attention of the public that a problem exists.

P. T. FAGAN, president, District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America — Undoubtedly Miss Hurst will do a lot of good here. I have always admired her as a writer. I feel that she is perfectly competent to paint a true picture of conditions here.

DR. SAMUEL H. GOLDENSON, rabbi Rodef Shalom Congregation—Miss Hurst needs no introduction anywhere in the country. It is to be hoped that her visit here will contribute something to the situation.

MRS. HARRY J. MILLER, president Milk and Ice Fund Association of Pittsburgh—I am tremendously interested in the visit of Miss Hurst to Pittsburgh. I feel she is competent to give us what we need—an unbiased opinion of the issues involved in the coal strike.

FANNIE HURST TO TELL MINE STORY

Invitations to attend receptions, teas and dinners are pouring into the Sun-Telegraph offices for Fannie Hurst, noted novelist, who comes tomorrow to report the coal strike for this paper.

Miss Hurst, who draws a sum in four figures for a single short story, will present to Sun-Telegraph readers an unbiased view on the entire situation in the coal industry as she sees it in a continuity of interviews with union leaders, operators and industrial leaders affected by the strike. She will go into the villages where families of striking miners are living in barracks; she will visit the United States Bureau of Mines to obtain statistical data on the coal industry.

Under her contract with the Sun-Telegraph, Miss Hurst will describe what she sees, report what she hears and tell what she thinks about it in a series of daily articles to appear exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

Miss Hurst attained fame because, in her effort to study at first hand characters she intended to portray in her stories, she quit a home of wealth to work as waitress, shopgirl and saleswoman. She is a recognized authority on economic conditions in America.

MRS. VANDERBILT WEDS AGAIN

Ruth Taylor, Movie Lorelei, Like Character She Portrays, Isn't as Dumb as She Seems

By BLAND JOHANESON

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.

"TO THE girls from Ruth Taylor, "Be dumb, but keep thinking all the time." This pronouncement is backed up with authority, for isn't Ruth the Lorelei of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," whose low moods festoon her with diamonds and smile paternally when she marries the richest man in America?

COAL COMPANY RECEIVER ASKED

Appointment of a receiver for the Pine Run Coal Company, with offices at New Bethlehem and operating coal lands in Armstrong county, is asked in an equity suit filed today in the Federal District Court by Charles L. Teale, an auditor.

Teale, in his bill of complaint, asserts that the company owes him $3,500. He says that through temporary business conditions the company is unable to meet obligations. In the last week, he says, five creditors have obtained judgements, and others are threatening suit to attach the company's property. These actions will interfere with contracts the company now has, on which it can make a profit, Teale says, and asks for the appointment of a receiver to halt them.

CROWDS AT AUTO SHOW

38 DISTINCT MODELS GREET VISITORS

A new type automobile, refined in appearance and mechanical detail to an extent undreamed of a year ago, greeted the thousands of Pittsburghers who thronged Motor Square Garden for the opening of the city's annual automobile show Saturday night. And added legions of Pittsburghers continued to crowd the big East Liberty structure throughout this morning and afternoon, with further thousands expected tonight.

Arranged in long aisles on two floors in a setting of blue and gold, flowers and greens, these cars of today presented all the new inventions and betterments of the automotive engineering research laboratories. Some of these cars continue to a greater degree than low hung appearance, while representatives of others talked style and mechanical perfection.

Brakes and pistons vie with speed in the talking points of all these cars. Comfort is not passed off with a few words, for more cars than ever are equipped with shock absorbing devices, and springs are continuing to grow wider. Convenience is stressed in new cooling and heating arrangements, new dashboards and new ideas in interior design and finish.

There are 38 different lines of cars on the two floors, all being shown in different dress. And on the sub-floor 32 parts and accessory concerns picture by word and display all the devices that have been produced to make motoring a still greater joy for the family and the business man.

The display, which is being staged under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, will continue each day this week from 10:30 a. m. to 10:30 p. m.

Henry has disappeared a dozen times now and his father told police he's going to put him in an institution until the habit is broken.

THREE HURT AS FIRE LEVELS DISTILLERY

Three firemen were injured by the collapse of a wall, while battling a blaze in the old Tom Moore distillery, Thirteenth and Market streets, McKeesport, at 4:45 o'clock this morning.

The blaze started in the bottling house, presumably caused by tramps. While the firmen were at their height a large section of wall fell, the debris striking members of Engine Company No. 1.

Three of the firemen, John Carr, 45, 425 West Fifth avenue; Harry Coulter, 46, 714 Evans avenue, and Bernard Donnelly, 32, of Fifth avenue, were cut and bruised, and were taken to McKeesport Hospital.

The big structure, long unused, was practically destroyed.

Thursday at the Congress of Clubs. The board meeting will be at 5 o'clock and dinner at 6. Miss Marie Knauz, the club's delegate to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, at Nashville, will give a report. Miss M. Bernice Storey is general chairman for the annual card party to be held Saturday, February 11, at Gimbels.

Miss Lucille Frud, chairman of the ticket committee for the card party which the Pittsburgh Pathfinder Association will have on Saturday, February 4, in Gimbels for the benefit of its educational fund, announces the following assistants: Miss Helen MacLeod, Miss Anne Schaab, Miss Florence Hansen, Miss Elizabeth Key and Miss Natalie Stickle.

Invitations have been issued by the Colloquium Club for its open meeting which will be an event of next Monday in the home of Mrs. William Gates, Beechwood boulevard. Hostesses are Mrs. Gates, Mrs. W. I. Patterson and Mrs. W. P. Barker. The program will consist of piano, vocal and violin music and readings.

PLANNING THREE SUNDAY CONCERTS

Announcement was made last night that the Pittsburgh Symphony Society would proceed with plans to hold three Sunday night concerts in Syria Mosque within the next three months. The first concert is to be held next month and the others in the two succeeding months, Richard S. Rauh, of 5837 Bartlett street, secretary of the society announced at the close of a meeting of the executive committee in his home.

It was decided at the meeting that the orchestra committee should meet this week to arrange rehearsals immediately under the direction of Elias Breskin. Edward Specter is chairman of the committee. David I. McCahill was chairman of the meeting last night. Definite dates for the three concerts are expected to be announced within 10 days.

A "modern breaking away from Blue Law bigotry," was the way one prominent Pittsburgh attorney viewed the decision of Judges Richard A. Kennedy and D. M. Miller in upholding the right of the society to give Sunday concerts. The legal opinion was rendered in County Court Saturday, dismissing the charges brought by the Sabbath Association against officers and musicians of the society, who were arrested for breaking the Sunday laws following a concert by the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in Syria Mosque last May.

James Frances Burke, counsel for the National Republican Committee and former congressman, when asked today what he saw in the decision as affecting other Sunday amusements, said:

"The decision illustrates the modern breaking away from Blue Law bigotry. Intolerance of the rights of others, expressed in unreasonable statute or the tyranny of those clothed with temporary authority, have not promoted respect for law in this country. Quite the contrary.

"Companionship with God should not be confined to Sunday alone. God's real lovers commune with Him every day they live, and that communion is not accompanied by tumult and shouting, nor is it promoted by passing blue laws.

"There is nothing injurious in an innocent Sunday pastime that does not disturb the repose and quiet of others. Real music is harmony and what the world needs is more harmony and less discord; more love and less hatred.

"Sunshine and open air beget good health and good nature, and in turn greater love for God. The brotherhood of man is not promoted by dungeons, chains and statutory shackles. If I could fill the world with music while I live, I would inspire a loftier standard of morals among men and women. I believe more of us are realizing this as the days go by.

"Though judges may differ, from a technical legal standpoint, this decision will indicate that a narrow interpretation of this century-old statute no longer fits the picture of present-day enlightenment. Consequently, the expressions it contains and its general effect on other innocent pastimes that do not disturb the peace of the community, will be wholesome."

Do you bathe?
Do you know Melo?

Do you bathe? Silly question! But you probably bathe in hard water. . . . Water that mixes with the soap, and forms a dirty ring around the tub . . . scum! And there's just as much scum on you, too.

Do you know Melo? Serious question! It will soften the hardest city water and make it just as soft as rain water. Add lots of soap to that. Then lots of suds will come. No dirt. No ring. No scum. A nice, sudsy, cleanly bath. You'll be delighted with Melo. Get a can at your grocer's—today.

President Von Hindenburg, of Germany, has named Wilhelm Groener, wartime dictator of German railways, as minister of defense in his cabinet. He succeeds Dr. Otto Gessler.

FORT HAMILTON FOUND UNFIT AS POST

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The Citizens' Committee on Army Housing, headed by Congressman Loring M. Black, Jr., organized by the New York American, visited historic Fort Hamilton, on the Brooklyn side of the Narrows, as the first of its 19 inspection tours to as many Army posts located in the vicinity of New York City.

What the members of the committee saw at Fort Hamilton of the way in which American soldiers of the Regular Army are housed in war-time shacks of flimsy construction, regular firetraps, and incapable of shielding human beings from inclement weather and the rigors of a northern winter climate, convinced them of the urgent necessity of prompt action by Congress and the War Department to remedy a condition that borders on the scandalous.

The soldiers have no complaint to make on the score of the food served them, especially since the increased allowance for rations went into effect on July 1 last summer.

A serious matter of complaint, however, the officers indicated, is that the deplorable lack of funds for the constantly needed repairs and upkeep of outrageously dilapidated barracks, outworn plumbing, leaky roofs, drafty and broken doors and windows, lack of paint and broken-down sheet iron stoves and kitchen ranges, compels them to use up for these purposes the scanty earnings of the post exchange and the barber shop.

As a result of the niggardliness of Congress in failing to provide sufficient funds for the upkeep of barracks, the social side of the soldier's life is almost wholly neglected.

Another outstanding source of complaint as a result of the bad housing condition is that the enlisted men themselves have to do all the repairs. They are obliged to do the work of carpenters, glazers, painters and building laborers instead of that of soldiers. The officers admit that this situation has seriously injured the morale of the Army.

The committee found the housing conditions of both officers, especially junior officers, and non-commissioned officers and their families to be far below the standard which men of their rank, education and experience have a right reasonably to expect in the Army of the richest nation in the world.

The worst possible conditions were found in the housing of the enlisted men. Most of them are consigned to ramshackle, wooden barracks, hastily constructed for the "duration of the World War," which was calculated to last five years. These structures are now 10 years old. They were built without regard for safety, health or sanitation and were intended solely for temporary emergency use.

The committee found the heating facilities in the buildings entirely inadequate and wasteful. Each of the squad rooms, in which from 25 to 50 men live, sleep and keep their personal belongings, are provided with one or two, according to the size of the room, antiquated, sheet iron, furnace-like stoves, many of them fit only for the junk pile.

The committee found the plumbing and other sanitary arrangements in keeping with the rest of the equipment. Practically all plumbing, showers and wash-room facilities at the post are of a primitive type, leaky, rusty, out of repair and have long since outlived their usefulness.

The concensus of opinion of the committee members, after inspecting housing conditions at Fort Hamilton, was that "the conditions are disgraceful and unworthy the United States of America."

(Tomorrow's article will deal with conditions at Fort Jay, Governor's Island.)

BOY SLAYER DIES IN CHAIR; CALM TO END

Close Calls in Formation and Pursuit Flying

"Lindy" Specializes in Pursuit Which Combines Some of All Other Forms

"Hurdles" was an advanced practice stunt that Lindbergh's class was put through at Kelly Field, as he told in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph yesterday. Then came target practice in which the cadets felt they were getting into real war work. And there was strange field landing to test adaptability and initiative, and long cross-country flights. All this made an absorbing story as told by America's foremost aviator, who is, by common agreement, the premier flier of the world.

Thrilling Air-target Practice

CHAPTER XVI.

THE tow targets are by far the most difficult of the three varieties, and require skillful maneuvering and excellent marksmanship. They consist of a cloth sleeve similar to a wind sock, which is towed a few hundred feet behind a De Haviland flying at 60 or 65 miles an hour.

When the forward or Browning guns were used, the attacking ship aproached the tow target head-on, firing one or two short bursts as it passed. In this way there was no danger of the occupants of the towing plane being struck by a wild shot. The De Havilands were much too large to use the forward guns effectively on a tow target. Any accurate shooting required the quick maneuverability of a pursuit ship.

The Lewis guns were used while flying parallel with the target and were very effective. When we were close enough we could often see the tracers pass directly through the cloth sleeve.

After returning from Ellington Field we were given a few hours in each of the various types of service airplanes. The M. B.-3 and the S. E.-5 scouts; the Martin Bombers with their twin Liberty engines; the T. W.-5 two-place transition planes, and the little Sperry messengers.

In "Pursuit" Stage

In this way we obtained experience in each branch: pursuit, attack, observation and bombardment. Later we were given our choice of which we desired to specialize in. If our wishes corresponded with the judgment of the instructors, we were assigned to that branch.

Together with three other cadets and four student officers, I was sent to the pursuit stage, where we spent the few remaining weeks of our course, piloting the S. E.-5 and the M. B.-3 single seaters.

Pursuit combines a little of every branch of the air corps. In addition to formation combat, dog fighting, and ground staffing, the pursuit pilot is often called upon to make observations and do light bombing.

A great deal of our time was devoted to formation flying. Air combat of the future will probably often be between large formations rather than individual pilots, and it is accordingly of utmost importance for the pursuit pilot to hold his place in formation instinctively, so that his entire attention can be devoted to the enemy rather than to his own formation.

We often maneuvered our flights while the individual planes were less than 10 feet apart and it was not unusual to dive vertically for several thousand feet in a fairly close formation.

Dangers in Formation

We learned the use of Lufbery circles, cross over turns, and other formation tactics. Our formations were often tight, it is true, but strange as it may seem, very few accidents occur from too close flying. A pilot is constantly alert when his plane is only a short distance from the one in front and nothing is allowed to distract his attention. On the other hand, when there is quite some distance separating them he is often more engrossed in lighting a cigaret or watching some object on the ground than in his own formation.

In pursuit flying we came to have great confidence in our parachutes. The planes we were flying were kept in excellent condition and none ever failed, notwithstanding the fact that we placed them under every strain imaginable. But the knowledge that we did not have to concern ourselves about whether they did fall apart or not was an invaluable factor in building up our morale. Our formations were tighter, the combats faster, and our flying better as a result.

Some Close Calls

We had a number of close calls, but considering the amount of flying we had done, and that all of it was military flying, which cannot be ever compared with commercial traffic as far as safety is concerned, our accidents were remarkably few and none resulted seriously.

No one knows of the risk he takes better than the pursuit pilot and no one is less concerned about it. Every move, although at lightning speed, is made with a coolness born of experience and love of flying. The Army Air Corps is built up of men who fly for the love of flying. Their only mission in life is to build up the finest air crops in the world, and their greatest desire is to be given the opportunity to do so without restriction. If an officer is lost in duty he would be the last one to wish for resulting restrictions on his comrades.

A week of our pursuit training was spent on a gunnery expedition at Galveston. We flew there from Kelly Field in M.B.3A. machines and fired on tow targets exclusively. Our field was close to the gulf, and when the day's operations had been completed we were free to go about as we chose. Consequently a large part of the evening was spent along the rocky beach.

On the night of our last day at Galveston several of us were holding a contest to decide which could reach the most distant rock between the breakers before the next wave rolled in. One of the fellows was outstanding in his accomplishments.

Pride and a Fall

In fact he was so dextrous that none of us could compete, so we were all loud in our praises and unanimously agreed that there was not a rock in the gulf too obscure for him. There was, however, a rock a number of feet beyond the most distant point any of us had attained, which was visible only for an instant as the last breaker receded and before the next arrived. Even this was possible, we confidently assured him.

He watched that rock intently for several minutes; then bolstered up by our praise and his own confidence, he stood poised and ready. At the proper moment he nimbly leaped from boulder to boulder after the retreating surf, but just before the final rock was touched a large wave towered above it. Too late! The chance of retreat had never been considered and its opportunity had passed. With do or die determination he leaped onto the boulder and into the breaking wave.

This incident would not have been serious or its consequences important had we been able to carry any extra equipment in our pursuit planes, but as it was, extra clothing was a scarce article, and when we took off for San Antonio and Kelly the following morning, it was necessary for him to send his wet clothes back in a De Haviland and make his flight in a bearskin flying suit without insulation against the bearskin.

FOOD SCARCE IN THIS FAMILY

One dollar a week for an adult and 25 cents for a child is the ratio of relief among the miners of the Puckety Creek district. Above are shown Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nuttall and their four children, ranging in ages from 2 to 6 years. Their weekly allottment is shown on the table—a sack of flour, two cans of tomatoes, three cans of milk, a box of salt, two pounds of sugar, a can of sauerkraut and a pound of bacon.

AN ODD ASSORTMENT OF SHOES

Who will provide shoes for these three girls? These daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Matecka at Kinlock, have no shoes other than the ones they are wearing. Annie, 14, (left), is wearing an old pair of her father's oxfords, having outgrown her own shoes; Mildred, 6 (center), says her toes are beginning to peep from beneath their leather covering; and Helen, 8 (right), is wearing an old pair of her mother's old-fashioned high shoes. The Mateckas have seven children.

DOROTHY YOUNGMAN

Their dream of romance shattered, Dorothy Youngman and Gerald Keck agreed to die together in Los Angeles. They embraced, and, as the girl clung to him, Keck pressed a revolver to her side and pulled the trigger. Then he shot himself. He was 28. She was 25 and a school teacher.

PATROL WAGON AFIRE

En route to the West End station after delivering prisoners to Traffic Court this morning, No. 8 patrol ignited from a broken fuel line at Baum boulevard and South Negley avenue. A still alarm was sent to No. 28 Engine Company. Damage amounted to $200, and the machine had to be towed to the garage. March M. Luster and Charles Scherlein were in charge of the patrol.

BOY KILLER DIES GAME

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Jan. 23.—Leon Scovern, Shamokin boy murderer, kept his rendezvous with death in the electric chair here this morning without flinching. In his cell before he started his death march as the slayer of the man who stood between him and the girl he loved, he kissed a crucifix and then his spiritual adviser, the Rev. Gregory Zaplanski.

Robert Elliott was the executioner. It was his first "job" since he electrocuted Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray in Sing Sing.

Young Scovern displayed no emotion except for a glance at the witnesses, mayhap one of slight apprehension.

Scovern's attorneys exhausted every possible means to save him, but the courts stood steadfast on the justice of his conviction and sentence. Scovern's murder of the brother of the girl with whom he was enamored was proven to have been unprovoked and premeditated. Forbidden by John Baronskie to further force his attentions upon his 17-year-old daughter Mary, because of Scovern's rather unsavory reputation, the young man armed himself with a revolver and on Sunday morning, January 3, 1926, lay in wait for the family's return from church services. Meeting them on the street, he drew the gun and opened fire, stopping only when his gun was emptied. He not only shot his former sweetheart but her father, John Baronskie, and two brothers, John and Joe. The latter was shot in the abdomen and died within a day. The others recovered.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By Harvey J. Boyle

EXACTLY four letters have come in to correct us on the statement that Pittsburgh girls do not smoke in theater lobbies between the acts. "Wait until a sophisticated play comes along," writes one correspondent, "and watch the girls puff away."

What is meant by a sophisticated play, we suppose, is one wherein a character elects to re-write the moral law or upset the existing conventions, accompanied, as we have observed, with a great deal of unhappiness.

"DON'T write, telegraph," says a letter from the Western Union Company, issued from the Pittsburgh office. And what we are trying to figure out is why we didn't get a telegram telling us about this.

WE WANT to do the right thing by the Bell Telephone Company and the Western Union. Just about the time we had formed a pretty good working plan, along came word from the United States government that the air mail was a good way to send messages.

THE black derby is coming into popularity here with leaps and bounds. Styles have a habit of leaping from one extreme to another. Thus, from the mode of walking around town bareheaded, there comes the drastic change to the donning of an iron skimmer. On the whole, if this opinion is worth anything, the change to the derby in place of no hat at all is welcome.

ON A warm day we could see some reason for a man walking around bareheaded, but it was difficult to perceive the general idea of walking through rain and snow with no head-covering. One man explained why he went bareheaded. The roof of his machine always made his hat dirty, he said. When we asked him if his trousers, too, didn't pick up a great deal of dust he was strangely silent.

A CORRESPONDENT is under the impression that because we said Moran and Mack visited Frank Sutton's hotel that we must believe Moran and Mack, besides being black-face comedians, are colored men. That is a fair assumption only if the correspondent also believes that no one eats in Italian and Greek restaurants but Italians and Greeks.

If the many Greek restaurants in Pittsburgh depended only on Greek patrons their business would be dull, indeed. Our slight observation is that Greeks are light eaters. In the restaurants where we see them they seem to be more intent on dealing and cutting the cards than on what happens to be on the menu.

Incidentally, they are considered by men who ought to know, as the best card players of any race. In some places, so great is their ability, they are barred from card games.

URGE CHILD UNION TO AID FIGHT OF MINERS

NEFFS, O., Jan. 23.—Organization of children of striking miners to aid in the union fight was urged in a resolution passed by the Willow Grove local of the United Mine Workers of America. It is believed, the resolution states, that the children would be in a better position to acquaint the country with the actual need for relief, and would also help by taking a stand against efforts to destroy American standards of living among company employes by proposed drastic reductions in wages.

Origin of "Gone to Pot"

THE phrase "gone to pot" is of Oriental origin. A tailor in Samarcand, who lived near a burial ground, kept count of the deaths by dropping a stone into a pot for every funeral that passed.

Pat Demands to Know How Lily Got Her New Clothes

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

LILLY LEXINGTON, spoiled daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, is engaged to marry STALEY DRUMMOND, a rich bachelor much older than herself. She is fond of him, but realizes she does not really love him the day after she accepts him, when she becomes instantly and violently infatuated with a taxicab driver whom she sees down town when she goes to meet her chum, SUE CAIN. Forgetting all about Sue, she jumps into his cab and he drives her home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE and that he owns his own cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. She marries Pat. Lily tried, and their domestic ship sailed smoother for a few months. One day Lily met SUE CAIN, an old friend, on the street. Sue invited her to a card party. Lily, without funds, went to a store and tried to charge some clothes to her father. She was informed her mother had left word that "Mrs. Patrick France could not charge things to Mr. Lexington." Staley Drummond pays her bill and takes her for a ride in his car.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"BUT I haven't ANY car!" Lily told him, her big gray-green eyes gleaming like jewels in the moonlit dimness. "I have to walk every time I want to go anywhere, . . . Oh, Staley, you wouldn't know me these days! I wear sensible low-heeled slippers and plain gingham bungalow aprons, and I scrub and I sweep and I slave like a scullery-maid all day!"

He shook his head, "It's hard to believe," he said, "You must be very much in love with your husband to do things like that, . . . And that's quite all right. I want you to keep on being happy, Lily."

But he said it as if he did not mean it. He sounded off-hand and not at all convincing.

Then, suddenly, he turned his head and gave her a quick, searching look. "You ARE happy, aren't you?"

Lily did not answer. . . . For the first time she began to doubt that she really was happy. She loved Pat. That went without saying—but was she happy?

"Oh, I don't know whether I'm happy or not, Staley," she did her thinking aloud. "I don't get much time to think about it. My life is just work and maybe a picture show a couple of nights a week, or a shopping trip all by myself in the afternoon, sometimes. . . . No, I'm not happy really."

Staley said nothing. He was one of those extraordinary people who know when not to speak.

"I didn't realize how lonely I was until this afternoon, when I went to Sue Cain's house to a party," Lily went on, just as he had known she would, if he kept silent. "All the girls were there—all of them with lovely new clothes on, and their cars standing in the street outside the house. And, Staley, I was just plain homesick by the end of the afternoon. . . . I do hate being poor and never seeing anybody that's any fun, or doing anything that's any fun." Her voice broke on a tragic note.

"You'd better turn the car and take me home now," she said, after two or three minutes. "I should have been home an hour ago—to put the potatoes on and fry the meat for supper."

They drove all the way back to the Boyle street lunch room in silence. As they pulled up before it, the steam-covered door of it opened and out stepped Elizabeth Ertz in her uniform of a visiting nurse. She looked straight at them, but she did not speak to Lily.

Lily gasped.

"What's the matter?" the man beside her asked, and she told him.

"That girl — she's Pat's old sweetie! She saw us and she'll be sure to tell him about it." Her eyes were on the small, retreating figure of the little nurse.

"Don't be silly. What if she does tell him?" asked Staley. "Is there anything wrong about your being here with me?—I'm sure this has been harmless enough—this little run in the car."

Lily nodded, but she had a guilty, shamed feeling all the same.

She got out of the roadster, and held out her gloved hand.

"When are you going to see me again?" Staley asked, holding it in his. "Tomorrow?"

"Oh, no—" Lily had no thought of ever seeing him again. She had no desire to see him again. None at all. He had served his purpose, and that was the end of it.

"Day after tomorrow, then?" he asked.

She tried to say "No" once more, but it was hard to refuse him when she had just borrowed something over three hundred dollars from him.

"All right," she said, slowly, deciding to telephone him later and tell him she couldn't do it, after all.

"Be outside my office-building then, at 5 o'clock—day after tomorrow," Staley told her, as he let her go.

It was just 7 o'clock when Lily unlocked the door of the flat that night and stepped into the sitting room.

Pat was there before her, reading the paper in the only comfortable chair in the place. Her heart sank into her high-heeled shoes when she saw him start, frown, and then sit up straight, with his face filled with angry curiosity. "What have you done?" he asked, his blue eyes taking in the little French hat, the fur-trimmed coat, the gold-embroidered dress that showed beneath it. "Opened a charge account? You know, I've told you not to!"

CHAPTER XXXV.

"NO, I didn't open a charge account," Lily answered, with truth, before she had time to think.

Afterward she told herself that she never would have told Pat even that much of the truth that night if she had known the trouble she was stirring up for herself.

"Well, where DID you get those things, then?" Pat asked.

Like most men, he knew very little about women's clothes. But even he could see that the things his wife was wearing were very, very expensive clothes. They fairly shouted "M-O-N-E-Y" from the top of the brown velvet hat to the hem of the brown-and-gold chiffon skirt just above her silken knees.

Lily did not know what to answer.

"I should have told him I opened a charge account," she thought. "He'd have scolded, but that would have been the end of it."

Now she knew that Pat would keep on and on until he got the truth about the clothes—or, at least, what she would tell him was the truth about them. He could be very stubborn sometimes.

Racking her brains for some answer that would satisfy him, she sat down on the broad arm of his chair and put her arms around him. "Hasn't kissed ums' wife yet tonight!" she reminded him. "Isn't um going to kiss ums' itty-bitty wife?" She leaned down and gave him a kiss that smelled of Blue Star perfume, fox fur, and face powder. He did not return it.

"Did um wonder where ums' wife got all the pitty clothes?" she went on with the baby-talk that Staley Drummond had always told her was so cute. "And is um cross as bear with sore head because ums' wife hasn't got the supper ready?"

Pat made an impatient sound in his throat. "Don't talk that stuff!" he said shortly. "It sounds like the dickens coming from a married woman. . . . All right for kids, maybe, but you're a big girl now, Lily."

He got up and stood looking down at her thoughtfully. "Well, I'd like some kind of an answer to my question. You haven't gone to your family for money, have you?"

Lily shook her head. "Of course not."

"Because you must never do that." He was very grave and firm. "If I can't buy you the kind of clothes you've worn all your life you'll have to wear the cheaper ones for a while."

"Yes, dear," said Lily, edging towards the bedroom. "Yes, dear, I will." She closed the door of it behind her and began to take off the golden-brown finery, hoping that by the time she had changed into her pink gingham house dress he would have forgotten all about it.

But he came and stood in the doorway, watching her. All the time she was putting away the lovely new things in the clothes closet she could feel Pat's eyes fairly burning holes in her shoulder blades.

"Pat, you make me nervous, standing there staring!" she said to him, irritably, and there wasn't a hint of baby talk in her words now. "What's the matter with you, for goodness' sake?"

"What's the matter with me for goodness' sake?" Pat came back at her quickly. "Why, I'm just waiting for you to tell me where you got those clothes."

Lily scowled at him as she picked up a comb and began to fluff up her pretty hair.

"How you do harp on a thing!" she murmured, rubbing some powder on her nose. By the time she turned away from the dressing table glass she had her story ready for him.

"Well, this is where I got them," she said, looking at him with wide-open innocent eyes. "I happened to bump into Sue Cain down town and we went into Angouleme's together. They know me very well in there—I've always bought clothes from them—and they said I could take the clothes on approval. But now that I've worn them I'll have to pay for them, of course."

Pat gave her a long searching look. "Is that the truth?" he asked.

Lily flushed under her rouge and her powder. "Why would I 'story' to you?" she wanted to know.

Pat shrugged his broad shoulders. "How should I know? But sometimes you don't stick to the truth, you know, Lily."

She shot him a glance that was full of anger and resentment. If she had just been telling him the truth instead of a downright lie, she could not have been more angry with him.

"Well, how much do you owe?" Pat asked, his hand going to his trousers pocket and drawing forth his billfold.

While Lily was wondering what to tell him, he went on:

"It relieves my mind, anyway, to know that you didn't go to your folks for money. I couldn't stand to have you go begging to them for clothes and things. You never will, will you?"

"Oh, never!" replied Lily, just as if she had not tried to charge the things to her father that very afternoon. "Never, never, Pat! I promise you. . . . Why, let's see, you wanted to know how much we owe Angouleme's for the clothes?"

Pat nodded.

"Seventy-five dollars," said Lily. Seventy-five dollars was just what she owed the delicatessen on the corner.

"Whew! Seventy-five dollars!" Pat repeated, and Lily giggled to herself, wondering what he would have said if he had known what the things really cost.

"Here's forty—all I have right now." Pat laid four bills in her hand. "I'll give you the rest tomorrow."

The next day at noon he came home with the remaining thirty-five.

Breathing a heart-felt sigh of thanksgiving, Lily paid the delicatessen keeper what she owed him.

Madge Worries About Having Both Veritzens to Dine

AT KATIE'S apparently innocent and natural query concerning the use of the best silver, china and linen for the dinner which was to welcome the arrival of Lillian and Marion, I had occasion again to anathematize the quick race of red to my cheeks. For I knew that underneath my little maid's seemingly innocuous question lay a very clear and mischievous realization of just the culinary problem which confronted me. I was sure that she even guessed the identity of the extra guest I had said Lillian might bring, and knew that it was Philip Veritzen's expected presence at the welcoming dinner which was so flustering me.

It was, of course, impossible for me to reprove her. She had given me no real or open impertinence. But the consciousness that she was inwardly cognizant of my problem and amused by it made my voice unusually cold and my manner stiff as I replied to her question.

"We will have things exactly as we always do for our honored guests," I said. "Please prepare the dinner with the dishes Marion likes, as you have just outlined them to me, prepare food for two extra guests at least, besides our family and Mrs. Underwood and her daughter, and use the prettiest things we have. I will see to the flowers and the arrangement of the table the last thing on Saturday. If you need any other assistance let me know."

Katie drew herself up haughtily, and I saw that I had grievously offended her.

"Ven I need help feexing dinner for you peoples I tell you qveeck," she said. "Den it time for me to find smaller place."

"Let us hope that won't be for many years yet," I said, not so much from a desire to soothe her as from a wish to ease my own conscience. After all, the girl had said or done nothing upon which I could lay a finger of criticism.

The radiance came back to her face with a rush.

"Eet won't be till I kick de bucket unless you fire me," she said extravagantly, and prudently I left her to happy plans for the dinner which was to greet Marion, whom she adores next to Junior.

It was not only the culinary problem of the dinner which was embarrassing me. I had two much more perplexing questions before me. One concerned Dicky's probable reaction to the presence of Philip Veritzen at our family dinner table. I knew, however, that the fact of the great man's being Lillian's escort to the farm would dispose of that problem as far as Dicky's outward courtesy was concerned. He would be the perfect host, no matter what were his real feelings on the subject.

The other problem loomed larger, presented more difficulties. It concerned Noel Veritzen. The young violinist had become so much a part of the family—he was a daily guest—and was so dear a friend of Lillian's, as well, that I could not omit him from my dinner list. Yet to have him and his father—on terms of total estrangement of years' standing—meet at our dinner table, unwarned of each other's presence, was unthinkable.

I did not believe, either, that Philip Veritzen would sit at the table with his son, even if the younger man were willing to do so.

I spent two almost sleepless nights worrying over the different angles which the problem presented. Then, with the reflection that absolute candor was my only course, I made an opportunity to see Noel Veritzen alone.

Happy is he who acts the Columbus of his own soul.—CUTLER.

AN active and generally prosperous day may be expected from the benefic planets in strong sway under Luna's transits, but in all dealings be on guard against subtlety and fraud or treachery. There may be an abrupt change but do not act with undue haste or tumult.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a successful and progressive year, with good fortune and a change of benefit, if they will be cautious as to duplicity and fraud. There is a warning against subtlety and haste.

A child born on this day should be skillful, generally clever and ambitious, but it may lean to and be subject to intrigue and covert dealings.

Boiled Custard

Take a half cupful of condensed milk and dilute it with a cupful and a half of hot water. Bring to scalding point in double boiler, then pour slowly over three beaten egg yolks, mixing thoroughly. Return to the boiler and cook until it coats the spoon. Remove from the fire and add a quarter saltspoonful of salt, and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Turn into a pretty serving dish and set to cool. Meantime beat the whites of the eggs stiffly, adding five teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar. Drop by the spoonful on a slightly buttered baking dish and cook a delicate brown in a medium oven. Lift from the dish with a sharp knife and drop on top of the custard, then set to chill.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BRAN AND CONSTIPATION

Thousands of people eat bran regularly for the healthful roughage it provides. It is a splendid practice. But be sure you are really getting all the roughage you need when you eat bran. Doctors say it takes 100% bran to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only accomplish part-way results. That is why they fail!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. Just two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

You'll like the flavor and crispness of ALL-BRAN. Serve with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Mix with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

PITTSBURGH NOT "DIRTIEST" CITY

No longer is Pittsburgh the "dirtiest" city in the country, According to the results of a scientific investigation quoted today by Prof. Samuel E. Dibble of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, both St. Louis and Cincinnati are "smokier" than Pittsburgh.

Investigation of 13 American cities made by H. C. Murphy, an engineer of Louisville, Ky., showed, according to Prof. Dibble, that St. Louis, with 17,600 dust particles per cubic foot, has the largest dust count in this country. Cincinnati, with 16,770 dust particles per cubic foot, is second, and Pittsburgh is third, with 16,100. Detroit has 15,300, and Chicago has 14,000. Boston, which has only 5,300 dust particles per cubic foot, is, according to Murphy's investigation, the cleanest city in the country.

SUGGESTS PROGRAM

That Pittsburgh has "relinquished" its rank as the dirtiest city is attributed by both Murphy and Dibble to the "strenuous methods in smoke abatement."

Prof. Dibble believes that much remains to be done both here and elsewhere in order to offset the increasing death rate due to contaminated air. Smoke, gases and other impurities in the air constitute the chief causes for the increasing death rate due to disease spread through air, he points out in urging legislation that will "speed up" the progress of sanitation.

Faulty plumbing systems in houses are constantly throwing off sewage gases and vermin into homes to increase the hazard of deadly disease, he warns. "Garbage, refuse disposals—all these and many others are a major cause in the death rate increase," he maintains.

STOMACH ALWAYS CAUSED DISTRESS

Local Lady Relieved by Ten Herbs; Feels Better in Every Way.

"No matter how carefully I ate, I always had indigestion," was the statement of Mrs. Elizabeth Beck, 1302 Retanna Way, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at the May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs. "Gas used to form like a hard lump in the pit of my stomach and made me feel miserable," Mrs. Beck continued. "I did not dare eat certain foods, as they would cause untold distress from gas, sourness and fermentation. I belched a sour liquid and did not seem to get the proper nourishment from my food. I often had a sour taste in my mouth.

MRS. ELIZABETH BECK

"My kidneys were not in good condition, and at times my back was so sore and achy I could hardly bend over. My liver was sluggish, and I had headaches. I would feel bilious and depressed. There would be black spots before my eyes. I was nervous and lacked strength.

"Ten Herbs was so highly recommended to me that I gave it a trial. My stomach has been greatly improved and I feel better in every way. My kidneys are in better condition, and the pains, aches and soreness in my back have been lessened. I do not feel sluggish and bilious like I did, and am not troubled with those black spots before my eyes. My nerves are steadier and I have more energy. I am inclined to praise your medicine as enthusiastically as those who first told me about it."

Similar experiences where local people have used Ten Herbs and found relief from stomach, liver and bowel disorders are being reported daily. Ten Herbs also benefits the entire system by giving it a thorough cleansing.

The Ten Herbs Man is at the May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

Hugging the Stove May Bring Sore Throat

DR. COPELAND

THIS is the season when sore throats are common. The popular idea is that cold weather and exposure are responsible for them. These may have something to do with sore throats, but I think there is a more importe ant cause.

If you live in a cold country, where there is lots of snow, it takes bravery to get out-of-doors unless your duties demand it. In consequence, you hang around a hot stove in the stuffy room, getting little fresh air and less exercise. Your digestion is upset and it may be that the bowels are constipated.

Nine times out of ten it will be found that constipation is present when there is an onset of sore throat. It is more than a coincidence. There is a real relationship and the constipation comes first.

Wrong living is sure to lower the vitality and prepare the way for illness. The germs of disease have an easy time under such circumstances.

There are several forms of sore throat. One is known as tonsillitis and another is pharyngitis.

You know what and where the tonsils are. One or both may be swollen and inflamed in tonsillitis.

The pharynx is the part of the throat you can see when you open the mouth wide and gaze into it in front of the mirror. The back, shiny membrane, within the view, and a little more below this tissue lines the pharynx. Between the nasal cavities and the part you can see, the part above the roof of the mouth, is another part of the pharynx.

Inflammation of this part of the anatomy is known as pharyngitis. It begins with a most disagreeable raw and scraped feeling. It gives the sensation of having had the inside of the throat skinned, leaving a raw and terrifically tender area.

In tonsillitis there is a splinters like pain on one or both sides. With it is very high fever, perhaps running up to 104 degrees. There is great prostration, bounding pulse and evidence of real illness.

The headache is pronounced. The tongue is coated. The breath is bad. It hurts to chew or move the jaw. Even talking is painful. The symptoms are so marked that it seems there must be a serious illness. Inspection of the throat may reveal patches on the tonsils. At once there is a suspicion of diphtheria. But the high fever in tonsillitis marks the difference. However, it is wise to have a culture made and examined in the laboratory so as to run no unnecessary risk to the patient or to persons he might infect.

The acute symptoms of pharyngitis subside after 48 hours. The pain grows less and the appetite improves.

In tonsillitis there may be the formation of pus. Then the question arises as to whether or not the abscess must be opened. The family doctor will decide.

It is important to open the bowels at once. Perhaps a dose of castor oil may be the thing, but in these cases prompt action is important. While I dislike the stuff personally, a dose of salts will act speedily and is not a bad prescription.

Various gargles are useful. But on another occasion I will speak more at length as to treatment.

If these attacks come frequently, it is well to inspect the teeth, having them X-rayed, to find whence the infecting materials come. There is usually a focus of infection if there are repeated attacks.

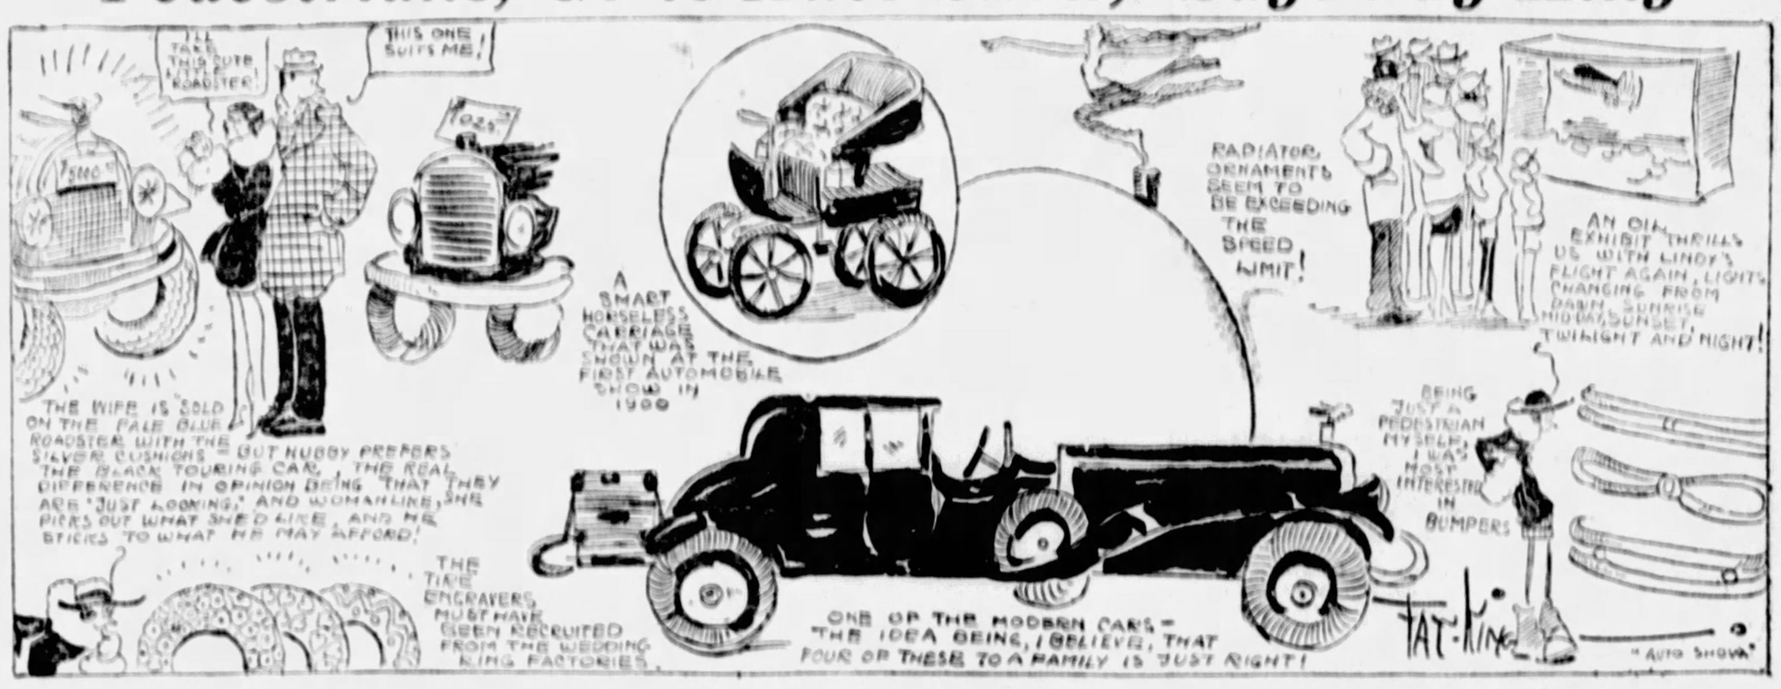
'Pedestrians, Go to Auto Show,' Says Fay King



By FAY KING

I STILL belong to that ever decreasing minority which does not own an automobile!

Of what interest is the annual Automobile Show to the pedestrian?

Of great interest, say I, who am a pedestrian among pedestrians.

It gives us an opportunity once a year to snub the automobile, which snubs us the other 365 days!

It is really the only time I have an opportunity to appreciate the automobile. On the streets I am too busy dodging them to see anything except the bumpers!

The bumpers naturally interest me most at the Automobile Show. I also like to find out what improvements have been made in the brakes and steering wheels, as these have a vital influence on my present and future!

I heartily advise all pedestrians to visit the Automobile Show. You will regain confidence!

It has meant a great deal to me to see the excellent new skid chains, the better lighting signals and the safer clutches.

I am glad to find that horns have also been improved, and that a good automobile can practically stop instantly and turn in its own length!

Bumpers, I am happy to see, have reached the comfort of a divan.

I would suggest an exhibit next year in which the pedestrian may be offered an opportunity to test dodging cars in action!

The pedestrian can be easily detected among those strolling about the show. He always approaches the cars from the side and absent-mindedly leaps when he finds himself in front of one!

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

HELEN ROWLAND

THE sole reason why many husbands are living today is because most women are such poor shots.

The old-fashioned lover used to beg humbly and passionately for "just one kiss;" but if the modern lover made any such modest request the girl would think he was trying to hold out on her.

It must be annoying, in this day of "progressive marriage," to feel that a lot of other women are just waiting for you to get through with your husband, and "turn him in" again—like a library book.

A man seldom hears anything a woman says; because before marriage he listens to her only with his eyes, and after marriage with only half an ear-drum.

Both "mice and men" will go right on confidently believing that they can steal the cheese and escape the trap, just as long as one of them manages to get away with it, now and then. But, alas, in the end, they all get caught!

It isn't his lost love that a man sighs for, but his lost ability to feel the same enthusiasm about her! Alas, every little bit chipped off of your heart leaves just a little bit less!

The difference between "slavery" and "independence" is apparently just the difference between catering to one man morning and evening and catering to an office full of men all the rest of the day.

Somehow, a woman can tell just by the way a man toots his motor-horn in front of her house, whether it's a love-call, a challenge, or a peremptory command.

The first kiss used to be the climax of love—now it is merely the overture.

Leather Liked

Leather is a popular trimming this season. Belts, bandages, collars and cuffs, all of this medium, trim any number of the smarter sports and street costumes. Reptile leathers, dyed and natural, gilded or silvered leather, and the usual tanned skins are used.

Egotism -:- By LUCY LOWELL

A FASCINATING play of the season tells the story of a young man who landed in a sanitarium because he was different from those around him.

He wanted to be an artist instead of a brush-maker and his brush-making father-in-law, aided by his drab-minded wife thought he was crazy because he loved beauty more than money, so they had him locked up.

And in the sanitarium a fine old character, a resident there, advances a theory which does not sound in the least mad: "Always do everything exactly as everybody else does it or they'll say you are cuckoo."

Egotism is a weakness of human nature. Some few rise above it; most of us see ourselves—our thoughts, aims, ambitions—as the criterion by which to judge the thoughts, aims, ambitions of others. And more often than not if those excite our disapproval we at once decide that there is something wrong with the person who is not like ourselves.

You will recall the story of the old Quaker who said to his friend, "Everybody's a little mad except thee and me, and thee is a little queer."

Egotism: the smug notion that because it is mine it's right; because I think with the herd, act with the herd, I am an admirable character and whatever differs from me, myself, has something wrong with it.

Curiously enough it is only those who differ radically from everybody else who ever do anything worth while. All genius, all who achieve, follow a lonely trail.

But then they, too, usually are considered crazy until their works prove them.

FOR THE LOVELORN

The World's Happiest Girl

DEAR MISS GALE:

As I am a great admirer of yours, may I be permitted to say, I wish you all the success and happiness in the world? Just a little message to "Lonesome and Heartbroken." You poor dear, you certainly must be unhappy, not having any friends. Friendship is a beautiful thing and I make it a rule to have loads of friends. "Lonesome and Heartbroken," please consider me your friend. I would dearly love to be your friend. And just remember this: To make friends be kind and sympathetic. That is the rule I have always used and the result is I have friends that I can count. Please let me hear from you.

THE WORLD'S HAPPIEST GIRL.

I certainly am glad to receive a letter so full of happiness and optimism. Your rule for friendship is an excellent one, my dear.

Friendless Man

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am very glad to say that you are are a fairy godmother of many girls and boys. There was speech that I learned from your column, but there is still more that I have to ask you. If you please will answer these questions I will thank you very kindly. At what ages do the girls in her town? What should a 19-year-old girl do who cannot bring her friends into her own home for several good reasons? She makes her home with the doctor for whom she works in the office during the day, and helps sing for his wife. Should she ask permission and introduce her friends to them? Is it all right at a sister's house to ask a fellow to dinner with you, or should he ask the young lady first? Is it proper to go to a boy friend's for the evening if my brother is along? Is it proper for one girl to go where there will be three gentlemen and one girl and the lady of the house?

FRIENDLESS NANNETTE.

The "rests" are just what they say, the ages between 12 and 20. Ask permission of the doctor's wife, and I am sure she will permit you to have friends at the house. Let the boy ask you to dance. Yes, if your brother is with you it is all right to go to the boy's house. As to your last question, the hostess is sufficient chaperon.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

WHAT has become of the good old days when there always were a half-dozen fellows around town anxious for a chance to promote a boxing show? For several years now, Pittsburgh has had only one professional boxing club—the Motor Square Club—and it has been running only spasmodically and with few whopper gates.

There has been talk from time to time that the Duquesne Garden management would break out in a rash of shows and also that this or that club would operate in the South Side Market House, which was the cradle of the old Keystone Club, but nothing ever comes of these plans.

Philadelphia has a half-dozen clubs operating regularly and there is keen competition for permits. Even Johnstown has two clubs and Erie has several of them.

This should be one of the best fight towns in the country, but it isn't for one reason, which is lack of competition. The good old days never will return until we get a group of ambitious promoters bidding for the services of the boxers and the patronage of the public.

LUIS CARPENTERO, the Filipino flyweight, who meets Jackie Rodgers, Negro flash of the North Side, in the windup at McKeesport Thursday night, is managed by Ad Thatcher of Toledo, who will be remembered as Tex Rickard's "front man" in the promotion of the Jess Willard-Jack Dempsey bout at Toledo in which Dempsey won the heavyweight championship back in 1919.

FLOOD GATE ran second to Sunny Cloud in the opening race at New Orleans the other day and paid the fine sum of 56 to 1 for place and 23 to 1 to show at the track. Its owner, T. W. (Chicago) O'Brien, in New York, bet $50 to win and $50 to show on the animal and at the track odds should have won $1,650 on his show bet. However, he was wagering with a bookmaker in New York who limits his payoffs to 15 to 1 to win, 6 to 1 to place and 3 to 1 to show and thus won only $150. Subtracting his $50 bet to win, he was only $100 ahead on his investment.

Write that one off on your cuff!

BILLY GRIMM came to this country amid a lot of fanfare heralded as the triple champion of Australia. He held the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight boxing titles of Kangarooland and it was predicted that he would prove a sensation. Instead, he has been a large-sized flop, first in California, then in New York and more recently in Philadelphia. He boxed Al Gordon in the Quaker City and took quite a shellacking. Gordon early closed Billy's right eye, handed him a body beating and had him woozy at the finish, while throughout the crowd complained because Billy refused to open up and fight.

HEENEY BATTLE FINAL TEST

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Jack Delaney, retired light-heavyweight champion, will accept only a match with Gene Tunney if he defeats Tom Heeney of Australia March 1, Joe Jacobs, his manager, said today.

Any proposal by Tex Rickard to match Delaney with the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Johnny Risko bout will be rejected.

Delaney would have nothing to gain by defeating either Sharkey or Risko, Jacobs said. Heeney fought a draw with Sharkey and holds a decision over Risko.

Thomas E. Donohue, president of the National Boxing Association and Athletic Commissioner of Connecticut, says that the National Boxing Association will endorse Delaney as the logical contender for the heavyweight title if he defeats Heeney.

SHARKEY SCOFFS AT RISKO

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Quibbling in the heavyweight ranks has broken out again with Jack Sharkey balking at an elimination struggle against Johnny Risko. According to Matchmaker Jess McMahon, one of the Madison Square Garden lieutenants, Sharkey feels he is sufficiently qualified to box Gene Tunney in a championship bout without the necessity of further tests.

However, McMahon said Sharkey's showing in his recent draw battle

RANGERS TOP BUCS; GET FIRST PLACE

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The Pirates of Pittsburgh, who looked for a few days last week as though they had finally awakened from the legarthy in which they have been since the opening of the present hockey season, slipped back into their losing ways last night and today prepared to continue on their way to Boston with a 4-1 defeat added to their record, said defeat being handed them by the Rangers on the Garden ice.

It was only a spectacular play by Tex White as the game neared its close that saved the Buccos from being shut out. He skated madly down the ice and poked the disc past Chabot for the only Pittsburgh score.

By virtue of having defeated the Pirates last night, the Rangers today are riding along in the lead in

NATS ASK TRIS TO SUGGEST SLASH

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington American League club, said today that Tris Speaker must voluntarily reduce his own salary within the next week or give up his centerfield berth with the Senators.

"It's up to Speaker," said Griffith. "He must make the first move. If he wants to play for Washington this season he will have to cut his salary. Unless he does he automatically will be released on February 1, the expiration of the time limit for tendering contracts."

Griffith mentioned the name of West, a hard-hitting recruit from the Southern Association, as a possible center fielder for the Senators.

"Although West was handicapped during the past season by sickness," Griffith said, "I think it would take a good ball player to beat him out of the job this year if Speaker goes out."

Griffith plans to spend the next few weeks playing golf and making preparations for arrival here February 19 of his 16 pitchers. The remainder of the team is expected on March 1.

Paid Foul Charge Aired

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Feathers flew thick and fast in San Francisco boxing circles today as athletic officials neared a decision on the guilt or innocence of Roy Williams, Negro middleweight of Chicago, accused of deliberately fouling Virgil (Lefty) Cooper of Minneapolis in the third round of their bout here last Friday night. According to the charges leveled against Williams, the Negro battler is alleged to have accepted a sum of money from a gambler for fouling his opponent.

Charles F. Traung, state athletic commissioner, will take charge of the investigation into the matter upon his arrival from Los Angeles today. If Williams is proved guilty of the charges, he will be barred permanently from California rings.

Redding was removed to the New Haven Hospital and several stitches were taken in his forehead.

Cotour's apparently unwarranted action led to a melee and he was rushed by police from the infuriated Boston players.

Results of the two games played in the Tri-State district Saturday went to show that aside from one or two teams, that basketball strength is pretty equally divided. Westminster, Pitt, Duquesne and possibly West Virginia seem to pos-

Roy O'Donovan, former Duquense University basketball captain, like Harry Levine, enjoyed unusual success in the collegiate ranks before casting his allegiance with the pros. No longer a member of the Braddock team of the Allegheny County League, he has signed with the Goose Goslin Club of the same loop.

(Golf has been made a compulsory part of the curriculum at Annapolis. Prospective naval officers are required to take 10 lessons and pass an examination on the links. Yo, ho, and a bottle of sarsaparilla!)

It was a dark and stormy night,
The links were rolling high,
While cruel hazards loomed in sight
Beneath the wintry sky.

The ship was slicing wild and queer
Amid the bunkers' roar;
So dark it was they could not hear
The bosun's cry of "Fore!"

"We're stymied, sir" the caddie said,
With a pale and trembling snort,
But the captain laid his mashie dead
And putted into port.

AN IMPORTANT meeting of the West Penn Football Association will be held tomorrow evening and while nothing has been said regarding the business to be transacted, it is though that the special business that is ahead of the body might be dispensed with.

Anyhow, a new president must be elected to replace the resigned head of the body and this will be done at this session. Of course should the leagues fail to get the proper notice, another session will have to be called to take care of what is in the fans' minds at the present time.

Saturday's game at Lawrence Park went to prove just how far ahead the Heidelberg outfit is of any other club in the district. Some real clubs played the entire season in the district league, but none of them defeated the Celtics by a score anything like the one the National champions ran up. Of course the Celtics spoiled their own cause by being over anxious. Shooting from a distance never beat Heidelberg. Fagan and Vallani are too well acquainted with soccer for that.

Fray Tops Local Card

By JULIUS LEVIN

THE I. J. MIELES, champions of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League, and their foremost challenger for the title, the Siano club, are awaiting "zero hour" tonight when the two quintets come together at Columbus Temple in their first engagement of the second half of the schedule.

The Mieles having clinched the first-half championship with 12 victories and two defeats, have no intention of slackening their speed in the second half and will be out to make it three in a row over the Sianos. The Sianos, however, have been bolstered considerably since their last meetings with the Mieles and they are determined to break the winning streak.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

Any contest between the Mieles and the Sianos is one of those "naturals" that proves a magnet for the followers of independent basketball and it past records mean anything tonight's battle should attract a capacity crowd of divided partisans.

The members of the contesting teams hail from the same section of the Hill district and are friends off the floor, but once the whistle is sounded they have nothing in common.

That the Sianos would rather score a victory over the Mieles than any other contender in the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League is a well-known fact in local basketball circles and it is a certainty that they will all but strain themselves to the breaking point tonight in an effort to achieve their long-sought objective.

While the Sianos have strengthened their lineup for the second half of the race, the Mieles have been compelled to change their lineup somewhat owing to the loss of Phil Aiello, star forward, who is a member of the Pitt Fresh eleven.

NEITHER TEAM BEATEN

As neither team has suffered a defeat in the second half of the race to date, the outcome of tonight's contest will have a big bearing on the championship fight.

The Holy Cross Amateur Athletic Club of the Center Avenue Y. M. C. A. is well on its way to what many believe to be a record for a high first-class team.

The colored passers have scored 13 successive victories against some of the strongest clubs in their class so far this season without the loss of a decision.

Conspicuous in the fine showing of the Holy Cross quintet is Maxwell Thompson, former Schenley High School forward, whose work all season has bordered the sensational.

Manager C. E. Pendleton is eager to arrange games at home and abroad with all teams in the light first-class division. Write him, 1501 Terrace street, or call Maydower 1916 between 6 and 7:30 o'clock.

The Dixie Gordon Club, A. A. U. champion of last year, will face one of its hardest opponents of the season tonight when it invades Jeannette to meet the well-known Felder Club.

The Gordons have been strengthened by the return of Davie Rosenberg and Abe Felser and will take the floor tonight in excellent physical condition.

The Felders have been making a brilliant showing in basketball this winter, including among their victims the highly touted Knickerbockers, West Penn League champions.

Tomorrow night at Taylor Allderdice High School, the Gordons will begin the defense of their amateur crown when they meet a strong team in the first round of the Alleghany Mountain Association tournament.

The Goose Goslins of the South Side will attempt to regain their winning stride tonight when they oppose the Knoch Rash Club in an Alleghany County League battle at the South Side Market House. The last time the two clubs met at the Market House, the Goslins scored an impressive victory over the Rashmen and they will be out to repeat tonight.

One of the most promising junior teams operating hereabouts this season is the Lou Gordon Club, playing preliminary to the Somerman attractions at Columbus Temple. Composed of youngsters who have played together for several years, the Gordons are defending the best teams in their class both at home and abroad. One of the reasons for the excellent showing of this team is Davie Slatesky, Somerman star, who is coaching the youngsters.

The Gordensons of the South Side will meet an all-star team composed of the outstanding players in the Philadelphia Company League at the South Side Market House next Friday night in a benefit game for the destitute miners in this section. The entire proceeds of the contest will be turned over to the miners' fund. In view of the fact that the Goldenson Venation all scheduled to meet the Philadelphia company girls on the same floor Friday night, a capacity crowd is expected to attend the charity affair.

the American group, as Boston was defeated by Detroit last night at Detroit.

RANGERS SCORE EARLY

The Rangers tallied twice in the opening period last evening, and twice in the second. Johnson drove the puck at Worters, the Bue goalie turned it back and Johnson, following up, sent it skipping over the prone goal-tender before he could regain his feet. Then, a few minutes later, Bill Cook shot a stinging pass to his brother, Bun, and Bun flicked it into the net for the second Ranger marker.

Play had been fairly even up until this team, with both teams playing hard hockey. White had a fine chance to score for the Pirates before Cook tallied his goal, getting a free puck near the net, but his try was as wild as the proverbial March hare.

In the second period Frank Boucher and Thompson scored for the Gothamites. Thompson registered after a fine dash through the Pirate team and ended the Rangers' goal-getting for the evening.

The lineup:

Pittsburgh		Rangers
Worters	G	Ogilvie
McCaffrey	R. D	Boucher
Burke	L. D	Johnson
Mills	C	F. Boucher
Darragh	R. W	Bill Cook
Cotton	L. W	Bun Cook

Pittsburgh spares—Drury, White, McCurry, McKinnon, Smith.

Ranger spares—Gray, Boyd, Murdock, Thompson, Callahan, Abel.

Referees—Dr. Eddie O'Leary and Bill O'Hara.

Summary: First period—Rangers, Johnson, 4:00. Rangers, F. Cook (W. Cook), 9:55.

Penalties—McCurry, Johnson, Bourgault, Smith.

Second period—Rangers, Boucher, 2:10. Thompson, 11:12.

Penalties—Thompson, Abel, White, Smith.

Third period—Pittsburgh, White, 14:42.

Penalties—Mills, Johnson, McCurry 2, Abel, Thompson, Bourgault, Worters, Bill Cook, Cotton, majors.

sess the class this year. Wash-Jeff, Grove City, Waynesburg, Thiel and Geneva and Bethany all rank about the same, though the Grovers probably have somewhat of an edge on all those named with them besides Wash-Jeff.

West Virginia showed remarkable recuperative powers in coming back and defeating Grove City after having been so soundly laced by Pitt on Friday. The Mountaineers established a four-point margin over the Crimson and held it until the end. Waynesburg, always hopeful but hardly considered a good bet, played real basketball to beat the Presidents. The defeat of Wash-Jeff leaves Pitt the only undefeated varsity in the section, and one of the few in the country.

The principals in the other half of the heavyweight elimination bracket also have tangled in a dispute. Jack Delaney's activities calling for a fight a week have drawn protests from Heeney's handlers who intend to ask the New York State Athletic Commission tomorrow to prevent the Bridgeporter from participating in any more bouts until after his match with Heeney.

Heeney's advisers assert Delaney might sustain injuries to his hands which would interrupt the present elimination program.

The savage attacks led by Buff Donnelli, Johnny McCosky and Mike Bookie, star inside trio of the Pennsylvanians, could not be stopped by Ohio's defense, and early in the game the game was safely in the bag. Ohio rallied towards the close and Purden reduced the score, making the game take on a more even aspect.

tunate to hold their own with our preliminary battlers.

THE rumpus over the selection by William S. Haddock of the Augsburg College sextet to represent the United States in the Olympic Games hockey competition is only one of the many tiffs that may be expected in connection with the classic international competition. Committees and clubs and individual athletes will be popping off ever and anon, as is the case each time the Olympics roll around, which, thank goodness, is only once every four years.

The bickering is not confined to the squabbling over the choices for berths on the various squads, but generally extends to bad feeling after the games, with regard to the treatment accorded the contending nations and even the housing of the athletes. Unpleasant echoes of the 1924 games have not yet completely died away and we are in the midst of new petty politics.

One thing this writer never could understand is why the A. A. U. must beg for funds to defray the expenses of the Olympic athletes each time the games are held. What becomes of all of the income of the association and why is not a sinking fund established to take care of this expense? In the case of the hockey selection for this year it became necessary to limit the team to half expenses. The Augsberg team was the only one in a position to accept the proposition and its selection failed to meet with general approval.

THE stage is being set for a big championship wrestling match between Joe Stecher and Strangler Lewis, both claimants of the heavyweight title, at St. Louis, February 20. They are to wrestle to a finish at the Coliseum with a $25 top for matside seats and the promoters are expecting a $150,000 gate. Forfeits of $5,000 have been posted to guarantee appearance. The winner will be generally regarded as the real champion with probably the first unclouded claim to the title since the late Frank Gotch ruled the roost.

Joe Stecher.

It will be the third meeting between the pair. Back in 1915, they wrestled five hours to no decision at Omaha, and five years later Lewis threw Stecher in a one-fall match in New York in one hour 41 minutes. Lewis claimed the title after this victory and defended it until his fateful meeting with Wayne (Big) Munn, who threw him out of the ring and injured him so badly he could not continue.

THE aged Stanislaus Zbyszko then threw Munn and Lewis also defeated Munn in a return bout. Zbyszko lost to Stecher, who reclaimed the crown, and since then it has been in dispute between Lewis and Stecher.

Stecher's famous body scissors hold will be pitted against Lewis' equally famous headlock in the forthcoming match, which is certain to attract widespread attention, despite the fact that the public looks askance at most mat bouts, rightly believing that few of them are on the level. Stecher and Lewis have every incentive to "shoot" in this match, which is a manner of saying that they should be wrestling on their merits with the result not pre-arranged.

Business Changes Mixed; More Mergers; Money Rises

—By B. C. FORBES—

SOME developments are favorable, some unfavorable. The net result has been moderately encouraging.

Powerful New York operators are still active, but orders from elsewhere have shriveled up. Irregularity continues, but the week shows a modest net advance.

THE absorption of California petroleum by the Texas Corporation and negotiations for the consolidation of more than two dozen coal properties in Virginia and West Virginia are significant events. Mergers will be numerous and important throughout this year. They will embrace practically every important industry and will be no less prominent in the mercantile world.

Everything is conducive to consolidations. Profit margins are usually so small that only volume can yield satisfactory dividends in most lines. Excess productive facilities make it doubly hard for weaker concerns to make ends meet. Then, money and credit are plentiful, thus making the financing of mergers easy.

In my opinion, smaller concerns that are experiencing difficulty in holding their own should embrace any reasonable opportunity to merge into a stronger, ably-managed corporation.

ANOTHER very significant development relates to the money market, namely, the liquidation of security holdings and the reduction of holding of open market bills by the Federal Reserve Banks. This course, inaugurated in the previous week, was again followed last week.

From what I happen to know concerning the attitude of Federal Reserve interests, this policy should be accepted, especially by Wall Street, as a warning that the continued expansion of brokers' loans would be resented and, if persisted in, would bring about an advance of the Federal Reserve 3½ per cent rediscount rate.

Already time loans in New York have been marked up. The importance of this fact should not be beclouded by the decline in rates for day-to-day loans on the New York exchange.

My guess is, however, that conditions in the stock market shortly will bring about contraction, not expansion, of brokers' loans.

BUSINESS news has been mixed. Thus:

Certain steel products have been marked up, but iron has weakened. Orders have been more freely placed for steel, but the almost equally-important textile industry reports rather severe curtailment and some reduction in wages. Grain prices have enjoyed an advance, but cotton has been wobbling. Wool is firmer, but railway freight is lighter than a year ago.

Automobile manufacturers are running fully 20 per cent above last January and employment in Detroit is better now than then. The oil industry, on the other hand, is still piling up stocks for which there is no market, due to abnormal, unregulated production. Dividend news has included quite a number of increases, but also a few decreases. The general price level has been well maintained. Conditions in the coal industry are bad. At certain places building continues very active; at other places it has fallen off materially. Commercial failures last week were heavy—fully 600. Nonferrous metals are easier and cast iron pipe prices also were lower last week.

From some points come reports of moderate unemployment, and wage troubles have broken out among shoe workers in a number of Massachusetts factories.

THE Bank of France, for the second time in a fortnight, reduced its discount rate to 3½ per cent. The Bank of Belgium raised its rate from 4½ per cent to 5 per cent.

Foreign bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange are selling at a new peak, notwithstanding the irregularity in most divisions of the security market.

More gold has come from Canada, bringing the total to $32,-500,000 in a few weeks. Gold exports, at least for the moment, have ceased.

Our government's removal of its ban against flotation of French corporate loans in this country doubtless will bring new issues in the near future, notwithstanding the apparent abundance of funds in that country.

ONE pleasing item from Washington was an announcement that income tax collections during 1927 ran $23,379,677 ahead of 1926. Individual collections fell off $50,000,000 but corporation collections gained.

Other Washington reports were less cheering. Certain radicals have attracted attention to themselves by ill-considered talk, and the hearing on the proposed investigation into public utility companies has revealed a tendency on the part of certain Senators not to pay serious heed to the objections raised by representatives of state regulatory commissions and utility leaders who urge that any investigation decided upon should be along clearly-defined lines and not take the form of a "fishing expedition."

Concerning presidential candidates, the only important development has been the appearance of fresh support for Secretary Hoover. Governor Smith still monopolizes the Democratic field.

THE prevailing tendency is to look for some gain in business activity by spring and for an unusually harmless presidential campaign.

RAIL ACTIVITY IS DUE TO MONEY RATE CUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Stock prices gave an impressive demonstration of strength in today's market. Lowering of the call money renewal rate to 3½ per cent, the lowest opening charge since last November, and the favorable character of the week-end trade reviews helped to create bullish sentiment and inspired a resumption of pool activity on a large scale.

United States Steel common crossed 149 to a new high on the current upswing. Motors responded to reports of increasing sales of the new models, with Hupp again in the leadership of the advance. Some of the sharpest gains were recorded in the merchandising group, Woolworth, R. H. Macy, Christie Brown, National Biscuit, Cluett Peabody and Abraham & Straus selling 2 to 5 points higher.

Public utilities also swung upward in brisk fashion, Montana Power, Abitibi Power and Adams Express selling at their highest levels since 1926, or lower. Fleischmann, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, Bucyrus-Erie, Vanadium Steel and Dunhill International also reached new high ground.

Trading, which had been rather sluggish for the greater part of last week, showed a marked increase in volume. Several blocks of 2,000 to 11,500 shares changed hands during the session. Except for a break of 25 points in Southern Railway, Mobile and Ohio certificates, presumably on the announcement of President Fairfax of the Southern Railway that the road would fight to uphold the legality of the contract under which they were issued, there were no outstanding soft spots. Rails moved forward with the industrials, Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio and "Nickel Plate" leading the advance.

BUGS BAER Says

SENATOR KENNEDY has entered Tex Rickard's elimination contests.

This will be sour news to Tex. For the Senator is trying to eliminate Tex.

Kennedy claims that boxing and wrestling are not sports. Still, the Senator has a job ahead of him when he goes after boxing.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

You must be a tall dentist when you try to pull a giraffe's teeth.

We admit that the Senator is correct in one minor detail. He says boxing is a business, pure and simple.

We concede that it is simple.

But trying to eliminate boxing from our climate at this stage of the racket is a tough job. The public has demonstrated its ambition to stand and fall with the heavyweights of America.

We like to pay twenty-two spinners for a ringside seat that is as far away from the ring as a mine mule is from sunburn.

We like to see two big bumpers mangle the air with wild swings and irresponsible wallops.

We admire to see the boys bite, maul and wrestle that the government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth.

There is nothing wrong about these twenty-four-foot lawn parties on a canvas terrace. Nobody ever gets hurt. And the referee develops new muscles pulling the boys apart.

Can Senator Kennedy substitute a better thrill than the one we got the night that Firpo clubbed Dempsey through the ropes at the Polo Grounds?

That was a fight. The only thing lacking was the sawdust on the floor and swinging doors on the ring.

How about the evening that Mitchell arose and flattened Benny Leonard after having been grounded three times? Benny was combing his hair at the time. Has the Senator ever seen Fred Fulton bobbing-for-apples, playing squat tag and otherwise indorsing the game of childhood inside the ropes?

Has the Senator ever piped Joe Grim giving swimming lessons in resin, or Bill Squires playing mumbly-pex in the first round? We have seen many fights, but we claim that charging admission does not make an amateur a professional.

There may be professional fights in Madison Square Garden, but they average only one to every six contests. We go in the hope that no fight could possibly be as bad as the last exhibition we saw.

But while lightning strikes but once in the same place a heavyweight repeats like a dinner of radishes. He picks out the spot marked X and even Senator Kennedy cannot stop him from demonstrating that anything accomplished by Sir Isaac Newton's apple can also be done by a red, ripe tomato.

What Is Man Without an Automobile?

A Bird Without Wings, an Isolated Slave of Gravitation

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

With the New Year come the new automobiles, the great automobile exhibitions, the excitement of choosing another new car, or the much greater excitement of choosing A FIRST CAR.

There is demand for millions of new cars in the United States at this minute.

Since January, 1927, hundreds of thousands have reached the age that makes it necessary, or acquired the money that must be spent for a better car, or another car, or two new cars.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

This is the automobile age, and the automobile is the family's real home. In that home we really live, for we live in our emotions, and automobiling supplies healthful, inspiring, mind-developing emotions.

Motoring gives to the body oxygen, the life of the blood, and gentle exercise that, stimulating "metabolism," prolongs life.

And to the mind the automobile gives everything.

It takes us where we want to go, shows us new COUNTRY, new PEOPLE, makes us acquainted with our own "neighborhood," that now, thanks to the automobile, extends for a hundred miles in every direction, and with our great country reaching thousands of miles east, west, north and south.

A man with an automobile has the ocean at his front door, the mountains at his back door, the lakes on one side, the far away country on the other, all WITHIN REACH.

HE, WHO OWNS A CAR, IS A FREE MAN, free from the law of gravitation that tied men to one spot, until the automobile came.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

Be sure to see the new cars this year, go to the great automobile exhibition, which is now open at Motor Square Garden, Baum boulevard.

If you already have a car, be sure to see the hundreds of good reasons for getting a new one, and a better one. If you have two cars, one for yourself and one for your wife, what about a third for the children?

The humblest kind of bird, little sparrow or the great albatross, supplies wings to each of its little birds. They don't have to stay in the nest waiting for their father or mother to come home and give them a chance to fly. They all fly when they please.

The ideal American home will supply automobiles for all old enough to use them. The one car family is already old fashioned. The three-car family is here.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

He knows little about automobiling, about life's real values who says, "It costs to keep up an automobile." That isn't the way to put it. The truth is that IT COSTS NOT TO HAVE AN AUTOMOBILE.

How much would an intelligent bird want for his wings?

How much would a poor hoptoad, kicking himself along in the dust of the country road, give for a pair of wings if he could get them and had the price?

He would say, "Give me the wings and take all I have."

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

DON'T be a hoptoad; DON'T be a bird without wings.

And if you can help it, don't let your family be a "One car family."

Have a good, substantial car for your wife and your children, the most valuable possessions you have on earth or ever will have. Have a light, quick, easily parked, easily turned car for yourself and your work.

If the neighborhood in which you live has no convenient garage, MOVE TO ANOTHER NEIGHBORHOOD.

A bird couldn't conveniently use its wings in a rabbit hole, but it would not live in a rabbit hole.

Whether you are planning for your first car or your fourth, fifth or sixth, no matter what your plans, what you have done or what you plan to do, SEE THE NEW AUTOMOBILES AT THE GREAT EXHIBITION.

Find out what has been done by the greatest masters of industrial development in the world, AMERICAN BUILDERS OF AUTOMOBILES.

Study the competition which is all IN THE LINE OF PUBLIC SERVICE.

Study the quality, value and ingenuity, safety especially. The marvels accomplished by the greatest American industry are almost beyond belief.

There is a car for every man, every family, every need, every pocketbook.

A comfortable car, big or little, with a SMALL house, is a thousand times better than a BIG house, made uncomfortable by the lack of a car.

In a house you only change your clothes, take a bath, eat and sleep.

In a car YOU SEE THE WORLD, and your family and friends see it with you.

SEE YOUR COUNTRY, see the sky and clouds, the beautiful sky of winter, the warm, warm sky and green fields of summer.

An automobile makes you the possessor of the beautiful earth, free to travel up and down in it, see it, enjoy it, POSSESS IT.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

Go early to the great automobile show, ahead of the crowds, see the new cars. Study the marvels accomplished in the greatest competitive, greatest public service rendering industry ever established.

If you haven't a car, get one this week. Better still, GET TWO TO MAKE UP FOR LOST TIME, one for yourself, one for your wife.

When not in use the cars don't eat or cost. If taken care of they will last as long as you LET them last.

The right kind of an American "fan" is an automobile "fan."

He helps to build the world's most important industry, helps to build human happiness, and especially the happiness of his family and that of his friends.

Get an automobile, get ANOTHER automobile. Be a free man, with a free, modern life, a real home—on WHEELS.

Increase of Steel Price Bread and Butter to Us

The raise in the price of several staple steel products, increased $1 per ton by the United States Steel Corporation, its example being followed by a number of other corporations, means bread and butter to Pittsburgh. It means the recent predicion of President James A. Farrell of the Steel Corporation of a good year in steel is coming true already.

Pittsburgh sells steel to the world and price means as much to us as the price of wheat means to the western farmer, the price of cotton to the southern planter, or the price of oil to the producer. All have been complaining—all but the steel producer have been seeking extraordinary means of relief.

Artificial relief such as is proposed occasionally by uneconomic wonder workers never can be more than temporary stimulation, such as a doctor gives to tide a patient over a grave interval and give him time to apply a remedy to the cause. Steel and wheat and cotton—and coal—have been patients. The economic cure has come for steel—increased demand.

The old basic law still prevails—there must be a market else there will be no sales. If we wish to be ever prosperous we must not look for a way artificially to increase depressed prices, but for a way to keep the demand for our product always up.

All in Pittsburgh should be glad—nay, joyous—because the price of steel is increased. It means bread and butter to us.

Sunday Concerts Upheld— Public Is Real Victor

The decision of our County Court, given in an opinion by Judges R. A. Kennedy and D. M. Miller, that Sunday concerts do not constitute an infraction of the act of 1794, known as the "Blue Law," is one that will seem just and right to all fair-minded persons. In effect, it is a victory for the people in much greater measure than it is a vindication of the officers of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society, who are acquitted of law-breaking by the court.

Nevertheless these officers should receive the thanks of that large part of the public which upholds them for having the courage to go through with what must have been a disagreeable task. Arrested at the instance of the Allegheny County Sabbath Association following a Sunday concert by the Pittsburgh Symphony Society last May, the officers of the society decided to appeal from a magistrate's fines of $25 each and make a test case of the matter. This is now decided in their favor and their appeal on the fines has been granted.

The finding of the court that the intent of the old law was "not to prohibit the obviously harmless and even the ancient custom of the rendition of music on that day" (Sunday) is an avowal in behalf of that liberty and freedom of which we boast and which is supposed to be our unquestionable right.

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society is an altruistic organization for the purpose of placing the best music before the people. Those of its members who play in its orchestra are working musicians, employed during the week, but willing to give part of their Sunday holiday to the entertainment of their friends, fellow members of the society, the lists of which were open to all music lovers.

It is ridiculous to assume that these musicians could not play in such a public-spirited manner without being termed law-breakers. It could as well be assumed that concerts in the parks and instrumental music in the home on Sunday are an infraction of the law. We are glad the court has upheld the right to hear the "obviously harmless" rendition of music on Sunday.

Bread Prices Fixed

The Federal Trade Commission has just made an important discovery to the effect that the price of flour and bread has been thoroughly "fixed" before the loaf ever gets to the consumer, and at present there is no way to beat it.

The public will not be greatly shocked nor surprised. If there is any particular commodity upon which the price isn't fixed, the consumer would be glad to hear the name of it.

PITTSBURGH SMOKE

Garrett P. Serviss -:- SOLVES A PROBLEM FOR -:- Auto Drivers

"If two automobiles are traveling in opposite directions at the rate of 20 miles an hour, and strike each other head-on, is the force of impact 20 miles per hour, or 40 miles per hour on each car?"—T. P.

IT WOULD be a good thing if all candidates for a driver's license could present a certificate of acquaintance with the law of impact, both head-on and side-swipe.

Taking the specific case offered, with only a slight alteration to avoid fractions in the calculation, let us say that the automobiles meeting in head-on collision weigh 2,000 pounds apiece and are both traveling at a uniform speed of 30 feet per second. The momentum of each, measured by the velocity multiplied by the mass (weight) is then, 60,000 units. But the two motions are directly opposed, i. e. one is plus and the other minus, so that they neutralize each other on meeting. If they were both plus the combined momentum would be 120,000, but in such a combination the velocity of the whole would remain unaltered since the mass would have been doubled. That would be the case in an imaginary follow-on collision of two bodies having the same initial velocity in the same direction. But when one velocity is plus and the other minus their sum in a head-on collision is zero.

The interpretation of this is that both of the colliding masses would come to rest, and the sum of the momenta would be absorbed in the work of destruction. But this does not mean that each automobile would have concentrated upon it the 120,000 units representing the sum of the two momenta of 60,000 each. On the contrary, since there would be now 4,000 pounds of mass in one lump, the energy of destruction affecting the substance of each of the original separate masses (now combined in one) would still be 60,000 units of momentum (30 per pound). So each automobile would be its own destroyer, as if it had run against an immovable solid wall.

But so far we have assumed that the two meeting bodies are perfectly inelastic, like, say, masses of putty, so that they would become a single body after collision. But an automobile is by no means an inelastic body. Just what percentage of elasticity is to be ascribed to it, I do not know, but, whatever it may be, its effect in a collision would be to generate forces tending to throw each machine backward along the course it was pursuing when the collision occured. Thus, there would be more or less scattering of the debris. And, if the two machines were perfectly elastic (of course, an impossible assumption), then after the meeting each would have its velocity restored, but reversed in direction, so that they would fly apart with the same speed with which they met.

Once Overs -:- By J. J. MUNDY

AT times you wonder why so few persons appear to be more than slightly interested in you.

You wish you had more dependable friends.

But do you deserve more than acquaintances?

You would like the benefit and the satisfaction of good friends, but you are unwilling to accept any responsibility so far as your friends are concerned.

Friendship is not a one-sided affair.

It cannot be one-sided and be strong and balanced.

Too many demand much and give little in a supposed friendship.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Came Floyd Gibbons, the correspondent, home from the wars and glad to remain in America awhile after roaming for years. And we talked of many things, in especial Willis Morgan's little chicken dinner place back of Eiffel Tower on the Avenue de la Bordonnais.

Walked through the town and loitered in the mammoth 10-cent store on Forty-second street spending $1.10 for this and that albeit I had no use for them. Then home gaily with my purchases which my wife promptly gave to a hotel maid.

In the evening to see Edna Leedom in her play and she excellently hilarious and then to a party with my wife where came ex-Mayor Hylan, M. Koenigsberg, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Cooper, Dick Berlin, Katherine Dale Owen, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McKeogh and others. Late home to bed.

Those prim ladies who sit—and how they do sit—in sight-seeing busses as "decoys" are to have a rest room in the Times Square section to which they may retire during inclement weather while busses go on their expeditions. And a rest room for them somehow strikes me as hilarious.

A new hotel has put a stop to free use of its writing rooms. Each patron receives an admission card upon registering, which must be presented to a writing-room attendant. Stationery grafters, among which I have been a round dozen, cost New York inns many thousands a year.

Wilson Mizner is Broadway's most famous wit. He recently sold himself down the river to the Hollywood film masters. It is reported one night club offered him $500 a week merely to come to the place nightly as guest of the management.

Mizner is one of the rare owls who has never taken a drink of intoxicating liquor. And yet for a year he did not miss leaving old Jack's until the sun was in splendor. He was once slugged and robbed on Fifth avenue. At the hospital he was asked with what the robbers hit him. "I don't know," he replied weakly, "but I think it was St. Patrick's Cathedral."

New York newspapers work in three shifts, the last of which is from 2 a. m. to 10 a. m. as a general thing. This is "the lobster trick" and is reputed to have been so named by a printer who came in one night at the inception of the idea and gazing at the boys around the copy desk observed: "You boys certainly look like a bunch of lobsters." Men on the lobster trick become accustomed to stirring out of sleep at midnight to reach their posts. Save on off days they have little companionship, for they go to bed in the early afternoon and everybody is working in the morning. Yet men have grown gray on "the lobster trick" preferring the odd hours and isolation to the usual hurly burly of the print shop.

But the loneliest of all New York workers are night subway track walkers. They live like moles walking interminable miles in blackness to inspect tracks. Mostly they are old men.

Anent the Pig's Tail

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Some weeks ago I wrote an article called "Why is a Pig's Tail?"

I pointed out that the tail of a pig is a total loss. It is too short to curl around his feet to keep them warm in the winter night, and not feathered enough to fan himself with on the hot summer evening. It isn't a flyswatter, a rudder, or a balance. Just a useless spinal raveling.

Since that happy day I have learned much.

Loyal sons all over the country sprang up in defense of the pig's tail.

Good-natured letters are still coming in recounting its virtues to your humbled scribe.

One of the best comes from Champaign, Ill. It is written in a firm hand by an old man, 82. Slightly condensed, the letter reads:

"In the editorial are 20 paragraphs and I find you are right only in the 19th when you say 'All wrong.'

"I have been a butcher and also a farmer for 35 years and have raised many fine hogs in that time. The Good Lord doeth all things well and placed the tail where we see it for various purposes.

"Say for beauty—to put a nice finish to the body. Exhibitors at state fairs always take special pains to brush out the end bristles. The tail counts some points on the score card.

"Then the curl is an index of good health and the feeder strives to keep the kink in that tail because he knows that so long as that curl is present the pig is in good condition. Trouble commences if the curl disappears. When a pig has two curls in his tail it indicates the height of felicity.

"Then the tail is a useful 'handle' to a pig.

"Say, Doctor, if you were running after a pig to catch it wouldn't you have a sorry time if there were no tail here?

"Also pig tails are classed in the market as 'tid-bits.' In the enclosed butcher's advertisement you will notice that fresh pig tails head the list."

Just think of that!

And I had been guilty of nominating this invaluable gem of utility to the office of Unparalleled Number One on the List of Useless Things.

Which shows what kind of farmer I am.

Strange as it may seem, every once in a while I make a mistake and it is usually when I am talking about something of which I know nothing.
